WAR GUNS SILENCED

And a Happy Saturday To You, Too

BOSTON (UPI)—The Massachusetts Senate has passed and sent to Gov. John Volpe a bill designating July 1 as Canada Centennial Day.

The bill, approved Thursday, provides all public buildings be closed on that day, which falls on Saturday when such buildings are normally closed.

Official Back In Jail

PRINCE RUPERT (CP)—A United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union official was refused bail and held in jail Thursday while three others were released on $200 bond.

Jack Nichol, UFAWU business agent, appeared in court with union secretary Homer Stevens of Vancouver, northern organizer George Hewitson and executive member Joseph Verde. All were remanded without plea until June 16.

VIOLENCE FEARED

The four were arrested Wednesday night. Their court appearances Thursday morning came amid fears of violence in an inter-city dispute that has continued unabated three months.

A non-executive member of the union, Arthur Murdoch, was arrested on a picket line Thursday afternoon.

'NEW FACES' ARRIVE

Police patrolling the docks were eyeing an estimated 50 "new faces" which arrived in this northcoast city by air earlier in the day. The strangers stationed themselves in positions previously manned by UFAWU picketers at the Prince Rupert Fishermen's Co-operative. They were not carrying placards.

DISOBEDIENCE

The four officials were arrested Wednesday night just prior to a union meeting and were released about three hours later on $200 bail each. Nichol was arrested again Thursday morning when he appeared at the Co-Op where picketers were parading.

The four were charged with disobeying a court injunction Wednesday and Nichol charged again with disobeying the injunction Thursday.

'Must Solve Root Problems'

Pearson Urges Peace Zone

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson called Thursday for a United Nations-enforced demilitarized zone between Israel and the Arab states to help prevent further conflict in the Middle East.

But he warned that the two sides will continue to be embroiled in conflicts unless action is taken to resolve the root problems of their long-standing enmity.

Unless a lasting political solution is found, it will be only a matter of time until there is "another round of this dangerous game of brinkmanship," he said during a special Commons external affairs debate.

CONFRONTATION

The world's "super powers" could be brought into direct confrontation because the United States stands behind Israel and Russia behind the Arab states.

There was danger that another war outbreak "in convulsing the Middle East could convulse the world."

Mr. Pearson outlined the following steps he said should be taken as soon as possible to cool off the crisis:

- The United Nations ceasefire resolution should be observed by all parties in the dispute.

- Free access should be allowed for all ships through the Gulf of Aqaba.

- Steps should be taken to allow Israeli ships to use the

Voyageur in Hospital

Canoe Injury Apt

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP)—The centennial voyageur canoe pageant recorded its first casualty Thursday.

John Ross, 18, of Fort McPherson, N.W.T., a member of the Northwest Territories canoe team, was taken to hospital with knee injuries. The diagnosis was water on the knee.

In sprint racing events, held during a one-day layover here after covering 634 miles of the 3,283-mile race to Expo, Manitoba placed first and added to its lead in overall standings. British Columbia is second and Alberta third.

Mr. Pearson said it was the U.A.R. announcement that the Gulf of Aqaba would be closed to Israeli shipping that provided the final spark for the current fighting.

The prime minister spoke after special steps had been taken to bring spending estimates of the external affairs department before the Commons. Opposition Leader Diefenbaker had suggested the step to allow a full-scale debate on the Middle East crisis.

Mr. Diefenbaker later accused the government of following ing an uncertain and irresponsible Middle East policy. It had tried to be in agreement diplomatically with both Israel and the Arab states.

"The Arabs no longer trust us and the Israelis wonder about us," the Conservative leader said.

Unless the Arabs changed their attitude, it was doubtful that Canadians would be allowed to send troops as part of a United Nations force that might be sent to the Middle East.

"No longer are we regarded as a country without a national interest."

In a brief clash with Defence Minister Melnyk, the Opposition leader accused the minister of deceiving Parliament during re-

The war between Israel and the Arab world ended Thursday in a smashing Israeli victory with their forces reaching the Suez Canal.

Egypt agreed to a ceasefire Thursday night, less than 84 hours after the first shots were fired, an even more humiliating defeat for the Arabs than the 100-hour Sinai war in 1956.

Jordan and Israel agreed to a truce Wednesday. Word from Damascus early today said Syria had followed the lead of Egypt and Jordan and accepted the United Nations ceasefire. They were the main belligerents in the Arab war to "exterminate" the Jewish state in a holy war.

In Cairo the semi-official Egyptian newspaper Al-Ahram announced President Gamal Abdel Nasser will address the nation today.

Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban said in New York that peace terms must be reached "in direct negotiations between Israel and the Arab states."

"I think that the time has arrived for the states in the region to assert their sovereign capability to arrange their own affairs," Eban said before taking off on a flight to Israel from the UN Security Council debate on the crisis.

Since the outbreak of the Middle East conflict Monday, Israel's tough and highly mobile troops and airmen had destroyed Arab air power, driven Egyptian armor back to the Suez Canal, reopened the blockaded Gulf of Aqaba and seized long-coveted areas of the Holy Land.

SECOND DEFEAT

Nasser, who yearned to lead the Arab world, was silent in the face of the debacle — his second humiliation as president in 11 years at the hands of Israel's air and desert legions. He was a loser to Israel as a field soldier in the war of 1948.

Egyptians were bitter as the news was broken to them early today by the official Cairo radio.

"This means we have shed our blood in vain," said one in Cairo.

The government radio in Cairo told the Egyptian people about the ceasefire acceptance without comment hours after UN Secretary-General U Thant made the announcement to the Security Council in New York.

SHORT WAR

One of the shortest wars in history seemed about over although Algerians radio said Algeria was willing to fight on to the liberation of Palestine and would accept no ceasefire.

In Damascus, the Syrians, who had been most vociferous in support of the war, kept up belligerent broadcasts until this morning when the official radio beamed out news of the ceasefire acceptance.

Before Cairo radio broadcast the ceasefire acceptance, an Egyptian army communiqué

Nasser, Hussein 'Taped'

Plane Tale Plotted By Phone

TEL AVIV (AP)—The Israelis told Thursday of listening in on a radio conversation in which they said Egypt's President Gamal Abdel Nasser talked with Jordan's King Hussein about joining in trumped-up charges that U.S. and British planes were supporting the Israelis in combat.

The Israelis said they tuned in Nasser's talk early Tuesday—when Arab planes had been disabled by Israeli action.

"When the extent of the military defeat was finally clear to Nasser, he began to act to save his prestige," an Israeli announcement said.

"Nasser decided to save his prestige by claiming the Egyptian forces in the Sinai retreated, not as a result of a clear and sharp military defeat in his war with Israel, but because of imaginary foreign forces."

Tapes and Text

The defence ministry played transcription tapes, in Arab, for correspondents and then issued texts in English. The spokesman, Col. Moshe Pearlman, said the Israelis had not made the "evidence" public immediately because there was so much other news.

The translation provided by the Israeli authorities was under the heading: "Conversation between Cairo and Amman by radio telephone link June 6, 0450 a.m."

Hussein: "Mr. President, if you have something or any idea at all . . . at any time."

Nasser: "We are fighting with all our strength and we have battles going on every front all night and if we had any trouble in the fighting it does not matter, we will overcome despite this. God is with us. Will his majesty make an announcement on the participation of Americans and the British?"

Answer not clear.

'From Aircraft Carriers'

Nasser: "By God, I say that I will make an announcement and we will see to it that the Syrians will make an announcement that American and British airplanes are taking part against us from aircraft carriers. We will issue an announcement, we will stress the matter and we will drive the point home."

Hussein: "Good, all right."

Answer not clear.

Nasser: "A thousand thanks. Do not give up. We are with you with all our hearts and we are flying our planes over Israel today, our planes are striking at Israel's air fields since morning."

Hussein: "A thousand thanks. Be well."

Both Britain and the United States have denied the Arab charges and the Israelis have said they were fighting alone. The British foreign office said Jordan officially denied all knowledge of any American or British warplanes operating over her territory during the war.

Attacked by Israelis: USS Liberty

Moscow Told Why U.S. Planes Aloft

Ship Attack Activates 'Hot Line'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Israeli planes and boats mistakenly strafed and torpedoed a U.S. Navy ship off the Egyptian coast Thursday, the U.S. defence department said, killing 10 Americans and wounding 100 others in a high seas incident that brought the White House into "hot line" contact with Moscow.

A flight of U.S. jet fighters sped toward the USS Liberty

15 miles north of Sinai when the lightly armed vessel reported it was under attack, officials said. But the U.S. planes returned to their 6th Fleet carriers when a message of apology was received from Tel Aviv.

The 110 casualties represent nearly one-third of the crew on the Liberty, a research ship that had been helping relay communications from

U.S. installations in the Middle East. About 20 of the wounded are in serious condition, said Phil G. Goulding, assistant secretary of defence.

Goulding said the vessel was badly damaged by the six strafing runs conducted by Israeli jet fighters. The Liberty also was hit on its starboard side by a torpedo launched by one of three Israeli torpedo boats.

When the White House learned of the attack — and before the Israeli note was received — President Johnson used the Washington-Moscow "hot line" to notify Soviet leaders that carrier-based aircraft were scrambling and heading toward the scene.

Soviet ships were operating in the eastern Mediterranean near the 6th Fleet and the president wanted Moscow to understand why the U.S. aircraft were being sent aloft, Press Secretary George Christian said.

At the White House, Christian said the direct communications link between the White House and Kremlin had been used "for a number of exchanges" since the Israeli-Arab fighting broke out Monday.

Drum Corps Cuts Ties with Hostelry

THIN RED LION: Director of the girls' drum corps, Bob Armstrong, reports that his group has cut its connection with the Red Lion Inn.

The circumstances are quite interesting. Mr. Armstrong explains that last year, before the girls had a sponsor, he asked local municipal councils for help.

He was told that if he could get a sponsor for the band it might assist him in getting cash out of the councils.

He went ahead and got the Red Lion Inn to help. When we went back to the council he got a reverse switch. He was told now that he had a sponsor, what could he possibly want with help from the councils?

Mr. Armstrong blames adverse criticism from radio programs for his decision to sever connections with the Red Lion Inn.

NOT MUCH: What does sponsorship mean? About $200 a year from the sponsor, explained Mr. Armstrong.

He added that in the past year his group of girls, aged from 12 to 16, has played for 27 public functions, and for this they got the grand sum of $45 in donations and two thank-you notes.

Mr. Armstrong is unhappy that the Kuper Indian Band is getting so much of a boost and a gift of public funds when the girls' drum corps is the official Vancouver Island representative at Expo.

He says that the girls have been invited to Expo and are paying their own way. They have raised $7,500 toward the total of $8,000 needed, and without a single cent from the public coffers.

The question he raises seems fair: Surely there are more valuable things that public funds could buy for the Kuper Indian Band than a trip to Expo?

STICKY SUBJECT: The Oak Bay Beach Hotel is renowned for its Snug, but it dare not say so.

Book matches put out by the hotel are forced to adopt a sticker — on orders from the Liquor Control Board — dubbing out the word Snug. Seems a pity you can't tell the world when you have a good thing going.

NOT THE GLITTER: Here's a note from the Canadian National Institute for the Blind. A persistent rumor crops up at least once a year and starts well-meaning citizens collecting silver paper to buy guide dogs for blind people.

W. A. Tymchuck, local CNIB representative, says this is just not possible. He says nowhere in Canada, the United States or Great Britain can guide dogs be bought in this way.

Blind Canadians get their guide dogs through CNIB, which makes arrangements with either of two schools where dogs are trained. Both are in the United States.

The CNIB is just a bit unhappy at these rumors and would like to know how and where they start.

AUDITIONS: If anyone wants to play with the Victoria Symphony Orchestra, now is the time to speak up. Auditions will be held soon and instrumentalists are invited to call Arne Bo at the symphony office to set times for appointments to meet conductor Laszlo Gell.

SNEER BLISS: The Master of the Queen's Music will be in town for a lecture at the University of Victoria on July 6.

Mr. Arthur Bliss will speak on My Life and Music, for $1.50 a head. Mr. Arthur is in British Columbia to conduct the grand opening of the Vancouver International Festival.

U.S. Planes Explode Missiles at Red Base

U.S. Planes Explode Missiles at Red Base

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Navy planes set off numerous North Vietnamese surface-to-air missiles and sent them snaking aimlessly at a secret base in a forest 50 miles southwest of Hanoi, pilots said Thursday.

Nine missile carriers, all loaded, and a radar van also were reported destroyed in the raid Wednesday on the base, which was detected by a navy photo interpreter studying reconnaissance photographs.

DIRECT HITS Phantom, Skyhawk and Intruder jets from the nuclear-powered carrier Enterprise streamed in on the target with bombs, rockets and cannon fire. Direct hits set off some of the Soviet-built, 40-foot-long missiles.

A second major U.S. target in 112 missions over North Vietnam was the Kep airfield, a MIG fighter plane base 37 miles northeast of Hanoi that had been hit a half-dozen times previously.

DESTROY JET FIGHTER Navy pilots from the carrier Constellation staged that attack through heavy anti-aircraft fire. They said they destroyed at least one of the Soviet-designed jet fighters on the ground and damaged four. There was no word of any aerial opposition. A spokesman said no U.S. planes were lost.

U.S. marines probed jungle hills in the northwest corner of South Vietnam for renewed contact with enemy units after a hot firefight Wednesday near Khe Sanh.

At least 63 North Vietnamese were killed when a marine company of about 150 men tangled with two enemy companies near Hill 881 South, the scene of heavy fighting last month. Marine casualties were 18 killed and 27 wounded, U.S. sources said.

Wait for New New? Or Buy New Old?

BACCARDI, N.B. (CP) — An RCAF information officer says Canadian servicemen are in a dilemma over the new green uniforms.

Ft. Lt. Vic Eldridge, information officer with the 23 Radar Squadron stationed here, said in a statement Thursday the men want a definite date set for introduction of the new uniforms.

"They don't know whether to buy new old uniforms, or try to make do with the ones they have until the new style uniforms is introduced," Ft. Lt. Eldridge said in the statement mailed to The Chronicle-Herald.

He said the men are "looking forward" to getting the new uniforms.

"It is much smarter than the present uniform which is 30 years old," Ft. Lt. Eldridge said.

The radar station in this tiny coastal community is about 25 miles from Shelburne on the Nova Scotia southwestern coast. Shelburne is 150 miles south of Halifax.

Fraser Water

Leaders Disagree

VANCOUVER (CP) — Conservation Minister Kiernan said Thursday there could be a "substantial amount" of seepage along the dikes of the Fraser Valley in the next 10 days and the valley should be prepared to go through a prolonged high water period.

Mr. Kiernan, in an interview said "the major problem will be keeping a constant watch on the dikes for holes which could undermine the dikes by dislodging materials."

DANGER OVER "The gauge at Mission will probably stay at 20 feet or more for sometime," he said. "I agree with deputy water resources minister Paget who said yesterday that he believed the flood danger in the valley is over."

Meanwhile Fraser Valley community leaders cautiously accepted Mr. Paget's report. Mission Mayor John Lamont said he feels the big flood threat is over.

DOESN'T AGREE However, Reeve Wes Johnson of Agassiz said he can not yet agree with Mr. Paget's report.

"If the river level drops off, I may change my mind," he said, "but there is a small amount of seepage in some areas."

Some folks tolerate spices very well. Others, especially those with ulcers or other ailments making the stomach sensitive, have to avoid seasoning or take the consequences.

My thought, therefore, is that youngsters should not be brought up thinking that food has to be highly spiced.

It's ironic, at times, to see some of these heavy users of salt and pepper complain about stomach irritation and reach for the bicarbonate instead of omitting the condiments. But, you see, they've been brought up to think that food doesn't taste right unless it is over-spiced.

Let Doctor Decide What to Do

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: Will you write about leukoplakia and how it can be treated? — MRS. B.F.

Leukoplakia is a sort of percolated thickening of a mucous membrane. We usually think of it in connection with the mouth, lip or tongue although, of course, it can occur on other similar membranes.

In itself, it doesn't as a rule cause any great problem. The great danger is that it can begin to change in cell structure, first becoming pre-cancerous and finally cancerous.

That is why we urge people to have their doctors (or dentists) keep watch so the spots can be removed if they begin to look threatening. There isn't any method of do-it-yourself removal.

People can, earlier than that stage, often do something to help the situation if they will just keep in mind one primary fact: Leukoplakia is usually caused by irritation of the membrane.

It is common in smokers, whether they use cigars, pipes or cigarettes, although the location of the leukoplakia may vary somewhat. The heat of the smoke is regarded as the principal irritant, although pipe smokers sometimes develop such spots on the lip, perhaps a combination of friction from the pipe stem, the heat and possibly chemical irritation from tobacco.

A broken or jagged tooth can also cause leukoplakia, and folks have been warned about this often enough too: Have such a spot inspected periodically.

Whatever the cause, the first step in treatment is to remove the irritation. If it is a rough tooth, have it fixed. If the patient smokes — well, stop!

Large doses of Vitamin A (10,000 to 25,000 units a day for a limited time) may help. Don't let leukoplakia give you a phobia, but don't ignore it either. Tell your doctor and let him decide what needs to be done, and when.

Pearson Calls for Peace Zone

Diefenbaker

established between Israel and the U.A.R., Mr. Pearson said, a demilitarized zone should be set up with the UN force maintaining it on each side.

The UNEF force ordered out by the U.A.R. before the current fighting started was on U.A.R. territory only. Israel refused it permission to occupy Israeli soil.

ISRAEL MUST AGREE

This time, Mr. Pearson said, Israel should make a concession and allow the force on her soil.

He suggested the UN Truce Supervisory Organisation, still in being, could be used as the basis to build up a strong UN presence.

Mr. Pearson said the fact that there was peace for 10½ years under the UNEF demonstrated that it was not a failure. "The time is not for vanishing United Nations forces but for stronger United Nations forces."

CAUSE LIES DEEP

The causes of the continuing enmity between Israel and the Arab states lie "very deep indeed," the prime minister said. A lasting solution would not be easy to obtain.

The UN Security Council holds the main responsibility for trying to resolve these problems, Mr. Pearson said. And the Big Four—the United States, Britain, France and Russia—as permanent council members carried a big share of the responsibility.

HIGHEST LEVEL

He suggested there could be a meeting of the four powers at the "highest political level" aimed at steps toward a lasting solution. Another problem was the Arab refugees who fled their homes when the Israelis established their country 20 years ago and who still are in refugee camps.

Mr. Pearson said the 1,250,000 refugees have been "used as pawns in the game of Middle East politics" and steps must be taken to resettle them.

External Affairs Minister Martin complained of "provocations" in Mr. Diefenbaker's speech.

NOT ACCEPTABLE

"I cannot for the life of me understand why there should be a suggestion in this House that because Canadian forces were requested to leave Egypt, Canadian forces would no longer be acceptable in that part of the world or any other," he said. "I didn't say 'any other,'" Mr. Diefenbaker interjected.

Mr. Martin said the remarks made by the Conservative leader had not been the kind he had expected in this type of situation.

NO HUMILIATION

The minister said Canada had no reason to be humiliated by the withdrawal of the UNEF units at Egyptian insistence.

There was no legal basis for the UNEF withdrawal, but he understood the problem faced by U Thant when Egypt demanded that the force leave.

cent debate on the bill to unify the armed services. The minister had not told MPs the main purpose of unification was to enable Canada to play a larger peacekeeping role.

"He deceived Parliament and now he's trying to find an alibi," Mr. Diefenbaker charged.

Mr. Hellyer said he resented Mr. Diefenbaker's "insinuation".

NO NEUTRALITY

After the Conservative leader resumed his seat, Mr. Hellyer described his speech as "one of the worst . . . I've ever heard in the House."

Mr. Diefenbaker said Canada could not afford to let go unchallenged President Nasser's stated aim of wanting to destroy Israel.

"There can be no neutrality on the part of Canada to those who have the objective of destroying the Hebrew race."

FREE PASSAGE

He said consideration should be given to making Jerusalem either a part of Israel or an international city. There must be free passage for shipping through the Gulf of Aqaba and "there can be no equivocation on this question whatsoever."

Another problem that must be solved, Mr. Diefenbaker said, is the plight of the Palestinian refugees whose camp living conditions he described as "a blot on civilization."

Mr. Pearson, reviewing the Middle East situation, said the recent fighting broke out because the United Nations had "failed miserably" to solve the real problems behind the Israeli-Arab conflict despite the fact that the UN Emergency Force had kept the peace for 10½ years.

UNANIMOUS

The UN Security Council had been unanimous in reaching a call for a ceasefire in the area but a start had to be made on working out solutions to the underlying causes of the hostility.

On the Gulf of Aqaba, he said Israel had declared 10 years ago that she would regard any closure as an act of aggression.

There might be legal questions about whether or not the gulf is an international waterway, Mr. Pearson said. This point could be tackled by the International Court of Justice.

But meantime there should be no claim on the waterway by any of the states bordering the gulf and free access should be allowed.

the desert. There was no other confirmation. Radio Algiers said several squadrons of Algerian Russian-built MIG fighter planes had arrived at an Egyptian air base. It was not reported whether they ever got into action against the Israelis.

One of the big battles Thursday was reported at Bir Gafsa, big junction and Egyptian air base 45 miles east of Jerusalem at the mid-point of the Suez Canal. The spokesman implied but did not say that the Egyptians had been driven out.

appeared to be preparing the people for news of a debacle. A communique said Egyptian forces were in a battle against Israel "unprecedented in its ferocity," and fighting went on.

Meanwhile in New York the Security Council deadlocked on the crisis when the Soviet Union stepped up its efforts to have Israel branded the aggressor.

The United States proposed a resolution combining a ceasefire appeal and a call for an immediate start toward a settlement of Arab-Israeli issues. The Soviet Union countered with a resolution asking the council to condemn Israel for aggression and demand the withdrawal of Israeli forces behind the armistice lines drawn up by the United Nations in 1949.

CONSULTATION

The council adjourned until today to provide time for consultation.

Thant read Egypt's decision to the council, saying he had received the following communication from the Egyptian ambassador.

"Your Excellency, I have the honor to inform you upon instructions from my government that it has decided to accept the ceasefire call as it has been prescribed in the resolutions of the council on the 5th and 6th of June on the condition that the other party cease to fire."

NO REFERENCE

Israel already had promised to end the fighting if the Arabs did so.

Egypt accepted the ceasefire call without reference to the Soviet Union's demand that Israel withdraw its troops to the 1949 armistice lines. Such a withdrawal would have forced the Israelis to give up, without any compensating factor, the huge areas it overran in the Sinai between the Suez Canal and the Red Sea and in Jordan to the Jordan River. The withdrawal also could make Israel vulnerable once more in an historic battle area where three wars have been waged in 19 years.

How did the Israelis do it?

"They applied the German blitzkrieg military tactic to desert warfare," one U.S. defense department officer commented.

ALGERIANS IN

King Hussein of Jordan told reporters in his capital at Amman that overwhelming Israeli air power knocked his army out of the war. He said the Jordanian soldiers stood no chance under relentless air attack and Jordan suffered tremendous losses.

The Syrian radio said tough troops from Algeria had joined the Egyptians in the battle of

Need of UN Strength

ONCE THE Security Council reached unanimity on the matter it was inevitable that a cease-fire would be brought about in the Middle East.

Two courses were open to the governments engaged in the Arab-Israeli war: to abide by the United Nations' appeal by voluntarily bringing an end to hostilities or to have peace imposed upon them through armed intervention by an international force.

It would have been a grave miscalculation on the part of the warring nations to assume that the United Nations had neither the will, the right nor the means to dictate such terms at this time.

The UN Security Council certainly possessed the right to act militarily in this fashion under Section 42 of the UN Charter. It also possessed the means to act militarily if concerted action under the aegis of the UN was taken by the Russian, American and British naval and air forces hovering on the edge of the war zone.

With all three of these major UN powers having publicly and jointly dedicated themselves to achieving a cease-fire in the Middle East as a first step toward establishing peace in the area, the will also had to be there.

The cease-fire has come and with it will also come reactivation of a United Nations Emergency Force. But this time the UNEF must be given the backing it needs—and it will have to be strong, well-equipped and capable of handling any emergency that develops.

To send in another group of international soldiers poorly armed, with vague terms of reference and uncertain leadership, controlled by the whims and fancies of any host government is to court similar disaster in the future.

The time has come for the United Nations to live up to its Charter. If it can't then it should be sent packing.

Fitting Observance

NEXT WEEK IS BEING observed across the nation as National Veterans' Week as that part of the country's centennial arrangements which recognizes the ex-servicemen who fought in the overseas wars of Canada's confederation history—the Nile Expedition in South Africa, the First and Second World Wars, and Korea.

There are approximately one million of such veterans still extant, a figure that emphasizes the services they have rendered towards the fortunes of their country.

As a precursor on the eve of Veterans' Week, tomorrow, Saturday, has been named as National Armed Forces Day, and events will take place in various centres embracing the three services. In Victoria, because of certain operational and centennial commitments, the related program has been scheduled for June 24 in the Patricia Bay airport area. At Comox tomorrow, however, the RCAF will stage a ground and air show for the people of the adjoining districts.

The tribute to those who have served and those who presently serve links both veterans and their successors. They are each part of the warp and woof of Canada's centennial occasion, for they stood on guard and held the flag aloft through crises and strife calling for selfless endeavor and sacrifice. No fewer than 112,331 names are enshrined in the four Books of Remembrance in the nation's capital.

It is fitting therefore that the armed forces, past and present, should have a special place in the panorama of observance that is summed up in "Canada's Centenary of Confederation."

His Excellency the Governor-General, the Rt. Hon. Roland Michener, has issued the following statement: "In this centennial year, when Canadians are examining their first 100 years of nationhood we should pause and think of the contribution made by members of the Canadian Forces both regular and reserve, during that time. We should think of the men and women who have preserved the security of Canada over the years and who have carried much of the burden of our international responsibilities abroad."

This is an acknowledgement which cannot be gainsaid.

Separate Tax Bills

HAZY AS IT IS, there are two aspects to the proposal being studied by the British Columbia government "to put school boards on the same status as municipalities within their own field" that stand out as most unlikely to earn it public favor.

Without going into detail of any kind, Premier Bennett has indicated that the idea is that the school boards would collect their own taxes instead of the municipalities billing the ratepayers for both the school and general-purpose levies; also that the provincial home-owner grant would apply only to the bills from the school boards.

The extra cost of setting up tax collection departments in the school district offices on top of those already existing in the municipal offices is one obvious reason for objection to this plan, and it is odd, as has been noted before, to find a government which has been accusing local administrations of waste and "misuse" of their funds advocating the duplication.

The application of the home-owner grant only to the school tax bill of course would mean that in cases where the school taxes were less than the maximum amount of the grant—and there are for many modest homes—the balance would not go to reduce taxes for purely municipal purposes. And thus Mr. Bennett would save a nice little sum at the added expense of the local ratepayers.

The premier quotes the maxim that he who spends the taxes should collect them. But in this instance the trustees are already directly answerable to the ratepayers, and the change that the government has under consideration would hardly make them more so. Were they being extravagant or inefficient in the view of the majority, they would be turned out at election time under the present system quite as readily as under a new one.

If Mr. Bennett can demonstrate any real benefit to the local ratepayers, the municipalities or the school boards that would result from the adoption of the plan he is studying, this might outweigh the objections. But if not, the proposal must appear as only an attempt to reap benefits, political and perhaps financial through the potential saving in home-owner grants, for his own government.

Problems Grow in Chile

Vital South American Battle

By GEORGE G. VINCENT from Santiago
(First of Two Parts)

THOSE who make peaceful revolution impossible will make violent revolution inevitable," Eduardo Frei, president of Chile, quotes John F. Kennedy. The words are his favorite maxim in the battle that is being fought in the longest and thinnest country of the world.

It is a battle without guns—but as vital as any struggle in Vietnam. The results will decide, less than four years from now, whether a Communist government will come to power on the South American mainland. Not by force, but by free, democratic vote, and the first of its kind to do so in such fashion.

By all we have seen and heard, that could easily happen.

Chile is a true democracy, one of the few in Latin America that survives as such in fact as well as name. Two presidential elections ago, the Frente del Accion Popular (FRAP), a Communist-Socialist coalition, nearly elected its candidate, Salvador Allende. It would have, but for the powerful women's vote; and while Allende has never admitted to being a Communist, Chilean Socialists are Marxists and it is the Communists that dominate the coalition.

Then, in 1964, with a Communist victory forecast as almost certain, Frei's Christian Democrats surged forward with a program of radical, desperately-needed reforms and fervent promises, to elect him president with a big majority. Aided by the decline in Castro's image and effective horror-propaganda about the treatment of family life and atrocities in Cuba, they capped their triumph in 1965 by winning an absolute majority in the elections for the national Congress—the first time any party had done this in more than 100 years.

Since then the architect of both the party's victory and philosophy, former university professor Frei and his largely youthful cabinet of intellectuals—the only true left-of-centre liberal party to rule a South American nation until President Leoni's advent to power in Venezuela—have been hailed by Western statesmen and press as Latin America's answer to Communist subversion, a saving example for other nations to follow and the continent's "last and best hope."

Not that Frei and his associates have failed to work with an honest fervor almost alien to Latin American politics. Their several aims include four things of immense importance to Chile: "Christianization"—Frei's term for direct "nationalization" in deference to the U.S. aid he desperately needs—of major industries and natural resources, especially copper, the nation's vital export; land-reforms—in this nation where, in the common South American pattern, about 1 per cent of the population owns more than half the land; reform and proper implementation of the tax laws, which to the wealthy have been largely a mockery; and an intense drive for universal primary education.

Much has been done. We were at the great previously-mentioned copper mine south of Santiago, the day 51 per cent control was assumed by Chile. Similar extensive government participation in ownership, though not majority stockholder deals, has been arranged for the giant Chiquilama open-pit mine in the northern desert, the largest copper-producer on earth, and other American mines, with the U.S. companies pledged to invest hundreds of millions in expansion programs, and guaranteed against expropriation.

Educational facilities are being rapidly expanded, with even army personnel detailed to build schools and teach. Slum-clearance is being tackled by new housing on an impressive scale. And, in 1965—an appalling shock to the whimsical business habit of keeping special sets of books for the eyes of the tax-inspectors—Chile became the first nation of the continent to inflict a prison sentence for tax evasion.

But on the adverse side, problems grow. Through antiquated and inefficient methods of cultivation the nation cannot feed itself, a situation compounded by the fantastic increase in population. The cost of the reforms, if they are fully implemented, simply cannot be met by Chile's present resources. Living costs have almost trebled since our last visit in 1963, accompanied by a spectacular inflation of the currency—which particularly hits the very middle class from which Frei's main support is drawn.

The enormous tariffs imposed to protect the nation's money have made the prices of most imports prohibitive. A car costs about five times the Canadian price, except for the almost skeletal, locally assembled little "Citroenetas."

Chile, like the rest of South America, is failing to make available the very goods and amenities which the people are increasingly stimulated to demand, thanks both to more education and the political emphasis on their rights. There is a dour cloud over Frei's formerly cheerful countenance. People are frustrated and worried. And the universities, crammed with students who have little hope of getting worthwhile jobs when they graduate, are easy targets for Communist agitators.

Frei, faced with these and many other problems and hampered by the impatient and doctrinaire idealisms of some of his own more powerful supporters, knows he is racing against time.

He also knows he must perform a balancing act between the pressures for speedy implementation of his election promises and the obstacles that could defeat them if they were implemented in an over-hasty manner. He is not aided by the fact that he lacks a majority in the Senate, presided over by his chief political foe, Allende, where both conservative and far-left members from powerful groups—to the point where their needling tactics refused him permission to visit the U.S.A. this year.

Diplomatic Pressure to Restore Status Quo

U.S., Russia May Gang-Up on Israel

By K. C. THALER, from London

Even before the guns cooled, the diplomatic phase of the Mideast crisis began unfolding and it may bring a new dilemma for the United States.

The key, in the opinion of diplomatic quarters here, is in Israel's hands and in the precise nature of Israeli demands on the vanquished Arab states. The question is whether Israel will be willing to restore captured territory in exchange for guarantees that would give it use of the Gulf of Aqaba for its port of Elath plus use of the Suez Canal or will Israel seek border changes as well?

Israeli premier Levi Eshkol has said Israel seeks no territorial gain. Foreign Minister Abba Eban said Israel seeks only its territorial "integrity." But Defence Minister Moshe Dayan, quite possibly speaking in the flush of victory, said Israel had taken the Jordan sector of Jerusalem for keeps.

Diplomatic sources report pressure on Israel already to surrender the land it seized. Other pressure is developing on Israel to keep territorial gains, lest a return to its old borders sow the seeds of another war.

The next moves are Israel's. What steps it takes must affect the wider arena of the big powers: Russia and the United States.

The Soviet Union will support the Arabs in any territorial dispute. Some of the Arab-Soviet bloom has withered in the heat of the last four days. But the Soviets have made it withdraw to the 1949 Mideast armistice lines.

The United States might find it difficult not to agree with the Soviet-Arab side. As recently as May 23, President Johnson stated:

"I wish to say what three Presidents have said before—that the United States is firmly committed to the support of the political independence and territorial integrity of all the nations of the area."

At this point, say diplomatic sources, it is doubtful that the Israelis would accept big power counsel. Neither would it take United Nations leadership; the UN did nothing to prevent armed conflict and did not break Egypt's blockade of the Gulf of Aqaba.

The logyhead positions make the aftermath of the war all the more risky. These proud little nations at war are not in a mood to listen to big brothers.

Further, the Arabs do not recognize the existence of the nation that best them. Negotiations without an assist from the big powers might be impossible.

There is the possibility that the United States and Russia might find themselves on the same side of the fence where restoring the old borders is concerned.

But the big brothers have their own axes to grind. No one in Washington or Moscow forgets for a moment there is more to the Middle East than Arab and Israeli national integrity and borders. There also is oil.

Mideast Problems Complicated

Peace Headaches Begin

By ARTHUR MACKENZIE, from Washington

A short war and a long peace-making. That's the prospect created by Israel's blitzkrieg against its Arab foes, and Egypt's acceptance of the United Nations' call for a ceasefire.

Egypt's speedy defeat has taken the U.S. off the terrible hook of commitment to aid Israel if necessary, thereby curtailing a showdown with the Soviet Union.

But a great many problems have to be settled in the war's wake which bear directly on the U.S., as well as on the U.S.S.R. and their unique relationship; the future of the United Nations; hundreds of thousands of Arab refugees; Arab cohesion and global stability.

The main objective is to prevent the Middle East from again endangering world peace as it has three times in 20 years.

But how much of its newly-conquered territory will Israel give up and how little will Egypt agree to leave in Israeli hands?

How can Arab bitterness toward Israel be expected to cool off after this latest major Israeli blow to pride and prestige?

Some believe the political careers of President Nasser of Egypt and King Hussein of Jordan are finished, or close to it.

Nearly 1,000,000 Arab refugees have been a festering sore spot since Israel was created and thousands more have been created by the Israeli gains on Egyptian and Jordanian real estate. Whose concern are they?

It may take years for the U.S. to patch up relations with the Arab bloc, some officials fear. Seven Arab states have broken diplomatic relations with the U.S.

The Soviet Union has backed a loser in the Arabs. Of special interest is the role played by the two super-powers—the U.S. and U.S.S.R.

Columnist Joseph Kraft refers to the intensive and highly-detailed discussions between President Johnson and Premier Kosygin in recent days as a "new duopoly." It marks the decline of the UN and of the middle powers as effective peacemaking agents, Kraft surmises.

Back in the 1950s, brokers for compromise between the U.S. and U.S.S.R. came from the middle powers, "notably Canada, India, the Scandinavian countries, working through the UN," he says.

Today, the super-powers cannot control allies or nations within their spheres of influence, says Kraft.

Kraft says this has led in both Vietnam and the Middle East to the "virtual effacement of the UN."

Scandal Shocks Pakistan

Slave Camps Uncovered

By MOHAMMED ZAMAN

From Karachi

About 1,000 men and boys are believed by police to be in virtual captivity in Pakistan slave labor camps. President Ayub Khan has announced deterrent punishment and a special inquiry into the scandal that has shocked the country.

Reports of armed camp keepers, of brutality, kidnappings and even killings are rife; handcuffs, rifles and chains have been found at the camps in northern parts of West Pakistan. Most of them are run by contractors digging irrigation canals for the public works department.

The typical camp owner probably has between 100 and 200 donkey carts. Younger boys drive the carts, which are used to remove earth, while older boys and men dig canals. They live in tents and their only food is dry bread tea and pieces of onion.

A man who saw one of the camps at Sari Thana, Hyderabad, during a raid said: "It was a God-forsaken place."

Young boys are kidnapped and brought to these remote areas and, according to one source, are forced to work 12 hours a day under threat of beatings. At night they are chained to prevent escape.

I saw boys and men at a camp digging a canal while guards on horseback kept watch. Would-be escapees were pursued, caught and punished. Some of the laborers had been living in camps for six years, and among them was an Afghan national who, coming in search of a job, had fallen into the hands of agents who supply labor to the owners.

I also met Gul Mohamed, a former soldier who wanted to start a shop at Hyderabad. An agent suggested he should supply food to a camp; he agreed; when he arrived he was held and only freed after several years when police raided the camp.

There have even been reports that boys and men who refused to work or cause other trouble were killed and buried. Police have recovered the bones of one man thought to be just such a victim.

How did police learn about the existence of such camps? Sahib Ali, an indefatigable social worker, said he has had suspicions since last May, when the son of a friend was kidnapped.

Cases of kidnapping piled up until Commander Anisur Rahman Arif, deputy inspector general of police, with the support of West Pakistan governor Mohammad Moosa — formerly commander-in-chief of the Pakistan army — moved in.

Secret service men spread over the province. They did a good job, and Commander Arif was told about two camps in Khairpur. Arif swooped in, and although some camp keepers escaped many were arrested.

An eyewitness said: "When Arif reached one camp, everyone went into hiding, but one boy was arrested. He was so afraid that he asked Arif to take an oath that he would never be handed back to the camp keepers. The oath was taken, the boy waved a handkerchief, and some 25 boys and men came running from cover and hugged Arif."

When Zafran Khan, a camp keeper, was arrested, Arif asked the boys what punishment they would suggest.

"Chain him to a tree and we boys will stone him to death," said little Noor Mohamed, who said he was beaten by Zafran and had a jug of boiling tea poured over him because he was too tired to work.

Noor was not alone in his anger — it was shared by all Pakistan. Newspapers, and other organizations put on pressure. "Horror," wrote the Daily Morning News, "does not fully describe the discovery of organized, widespread use of slave labor."

And Sahib Ali demanded that kidnappers of children below the age of 10 should be sentenced to death or to deportation.

This was the beginning of a large-scale drive. Police are now combing forests and mountains, and already more than 300 boys and men have been released from 10 camps.

The police are said to be searching particularly for Omar Shah, believed to be one of the biggest kidnappers and slave labor bosses. And cases are pending before courts against many contractors and their associates.

U.K. Brain Drain Jump 'Startling'

By PETE DESCHAMPENEUX, from London

A startling increase in the number of British scientists and technologists emigrating to the United States and Canada will be announced next month.

Figures compiled by the working party on migration, a committee set up by the government last November, are expected greatly to exceed the last available total — about 1,500 scientists and engineers lost in 1964. From the aircraft industry alone 535 scientists, engineers and technologists went to America and Canada last year.

The six-man committee meets shortly to assess all the information gleaned from seven months of interviews with such organizations as the Confederation of British Industry, the Conference of the Electronics Industry, and the Society of British Aerospace Companies.

In offering suggestions on how this "brain drain" might be stemmed or even reversed, the committee will emphasize the necessity of keeping in touch with migrants to encourage them to return to Britain and to ensure they will be welcome.

In many cases migrants with British wives are especially keen to return, and it will be suggested that they should be given financial assistance to do so. Former employers should be encouraged to keep in touch with them.

The economic freeze has undoubtedly played its part in the emigration and the committee has evidence that numbers will continue to increase. It is urged that salary scales should be raised, but on how this cost could be met there is no unanimous view.

Great concern is felt over the loss of Ph.D.'s, who often go to North America straight from university. This is especially surprising considering the starting salary in most categories is more than three times higher than in Britain.

The committee will admit to Wedgwood Benn, minister of technology, that there is no easy solution, especially with American recruiting agents increasing their visits from quarterly to monthly.

'No Choice But Try For Home'

"I had to do my best to get home," a 29-year-old Israeli man who ran away from William Head minimum-security prison Tuesday told Magistrate William Ostler when he appeared in central magistrates' court Thursday morning.

"I had no choice," Josef Noche, Bones explained, and told court he fled prison to try to rejoin his family in Haifa while his country was at war.

He pleaded guilty to a charge of escaping lawful custody and also to a charge of unlawfully being at large.

Bones was apprehended by Colwood RCMP about 7:30 a.m. Thursday near the naval establishment at Colwood.

He was serving a three-year sentence for bank robbery and would have been released next fall.

Bones said he did not escape with any criminal intentions and was going to serve out his full time.

"But the situation changed," he told Magistrate Ostler.

He planned to get to Vancouver and from there make his way to Israel by ship or plane.

The accused told court he applied for deportation about two weeks ago and knew this was proceeding, but was afraid it would take too long.

"You may have upset the whole thing by this stupid behavior," Magistrate Ostler said and remanded him until today for sentence to determine the government's attitude to deporting him.

Left His Wallet

A 21-year-old man who left his wallet on the floor of a car he attempted to steal was sentenced to six months.

Gary J. Streton, 415 Island Highway, pleaded guilty to attempting to steal a car from a Yates Street parking lot Tuesday evening.

Court was told the accused gained entry to the car through a window and his wallet was found on the floor of the car.

Prosecutor John Macintyre told court the accused was previously convicted of car theft.

"You don't seem to be able to keep your hands off automobiles," said Magistrate Ostler.

Streton said drinking was his big problem.

"I am prepared to believe that. Not many thieves leave a calling card," replied the magistrate.

Richard A. Good, 330 Niagara, was sentenced to six months in jail after being convicted at an earlier hearing of impaired driving on Government Street last April 18. He had been convicted previously of a similar offence.

A 21-year-old man who told police he didn't think a 73-year-old woman would resist his advances was remanded until June 15 for sentence.

Followed Home

Martin Dixon of the Canadian Forces Base at Esquimalt pleaded guilty to a charge of assault causing bodily harm to an elderly Esquimalt woman about 12:50 a.m. last Saturday.

Court was told the accused followed the woman off the bus at Esquimalt Road and Admirals after she had smiled at him.

He followed her home, rang the door bell, and when she answered, he tore her dress and ripped her underclothing. He also hit her in the face, causing heavy bruising.

Hugh McIsaac, 2685 Sooke Road, pleaded guilty to impaired driving on the Old Island Highway about 11 p.m. June 7 and was fined $400 by Magistrate Ostler.

Fined in traffic court were: John W. Crockett, CFB Esquimalt, careless driving, $40; driving without a driver's licence, $25; and driving without insurance, $15; Elwell Paget, 1827 Leabrook Place, careless driving, $35.

Chatterton Hits VLA

OTTAWA (CP) — Provisions of the Veterans Land Act are "totally and absolutely inadequate and unacceptable," Conservative MP George Chatterton said today.

He told the Commons veterans' affairs committee the requirement that lots purchased by veterans must be at least half an acre made city land too expensive for them to buy.

Veterans Affairs Minister Teillet said the half-acre requirement will have to stand because it is "the very principle" of the Act.

Mr. Chatterton, Esquimalt-Saanich, said few veterans could even afford to pay taxes on a city lot of that size.

"It will have to be remedied. You might as well do it now and get yourself a few kudos."

Power Needs Still Lead Supply

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

B.C. Hydro is rushing ahead with the construction of its fourth 150,000 kilowatt turbine generator at its Burrard Inlet thermal plant in a race to beat winter demands for electricity.

When the unit is completed it will help fill the gap in electrical supply that is expected to last in B.C. until power from the Portage Mountain Dam project comes on stream in the fall of 1968.

But even so B.C. Hydro will continue to meet its peak power loads with the help of the Bonneville Power Authority.

BUYING IN U.S.
Electrical Business, a Vancouver trade paper, says that the tremendous increase in B.C. demand for electricity has thrown out calculations and that the full requirements of the province are only being met through purchases from the U.S.

An official of B.C. Hydro admitted that his company was buying power from Bonneville, but he was unwilling to put a figure on the amount.

"It is variable," he said. "We need it when we have plant maintenance work to do and also when the loads are heavy."

He added that some of the power from the U.S. was being taken in lieu of payment for downstream benefits now being accumulated as a result of the completion of the Duncan Lake Dam in the Columbia system.

Power consumption in B.C. is said by the magazine to have been just about double earlier projections.

It adds that although Burrard's present three units generate 450,000 kilowatts, making it the company's biggest single power source, the supply of electricity in B.C. cannot hope to be met until Peace power starts to flow.

MUST MEET CONTRACT
A warning by Trans Canada Pipeline that it may have to ration its customers this winter unless new west to east pipeline facilities are completed this summer has drawn a stinging retort from one of its main eastern customers.

Consumer's Gas Company of Toronto, one of the oldest corporations in Canada, says that Trans Canada has a contract to supply it with gas and it does not expect Trans Canada to default.

Oakland Jones, president of Consumer's Gas, said he did not expect any shortage of gas either this winter or the next, and that Trans Canada will find the ways and means to come through with its undertaking.

10 PER CENT CUT
Mr. Jones was replying to a statement made by V. L. Horte, Trans Canada vice-president, who said that Ontario and Quebec distributors could be cut back 10 per cent next winter because Trans Canada was $7,000,000,000 cubic feet short of its requirements.

Mr. Horte said this could only be rectified by the completion of a new line, or by making arrangements with U.S. companies to fill the gap. He said Tennessee gas had been asked to supply 20,000,000,000 cubic feet but that his firm has been given no assurance it would be forthcoming.

COMINCO PAYS LESS
A hint of lower earnings to come was given Thursday by directors of Cominco Ltd. when they cut the company's semi-annual dividend payment from 90 cents to 80 cents.

The payment will be made on July 17 to recordholders of June 16.

The company said its estimated earnings for the first half of 1967 would be available shortly.

Lower prices for lead and zinc are believed to be the reason for the cut.

Last year Cominco paid $1.80 in two payments of 90 cents.

ANGUS BREEDERS UNITE
Eric Clarke, well-known Victoria insurance man, has launched out in a new direction. He has been elected publicity director of the newly formed Island Centennial Angus Club.

The Angus Club has been formed to widen interest and improve the breed of the Black Angus cattle.

WATER BONDS SOLD
An issue of $1,500,000 6½ per cent serial bonds of the Greater Victoria Water District is being offered to the public. Bonds dated up to 1973 give a yield of 6.50 per cent and those from 1967 to 1967 yield 6.75.

SILVER RESUMES CLIMB
The price of silver resumed its upturn on the London bullion market after being lower Wednesday.

The spot price was up nearly two cents an ounce at $1.67, but was still more than seven cents below its recent high.

Copper also rose to 47½ cents a pound from 46½ cents the previous day, but the prices of tin, lead and zinc were all fractionally lower.

S-S TEAM COMING
Simpsons-Sears Ltd., which is planning to build a department store in Victoria on Hillside, is holding a directors' meeting in Vancouver Monday — its first on the west coast.

Attending are Jack Barrow, chairman, and Douglas Peacher, president.

It is expected a visit will also be paid by members of the board to the company's various operations on Vancouver Island.

Cigarette Fires Take 117 Lives
OTTAWA (CP)—Fires known to have been caused by smoking took 117 lives and caused more than $22,000,000 in property damage in 1964-65, government data shows. Of all property fires in 1964, 33 per cent were caused by smoking.

Tear Gas Used
HONG KONG (AP)—Police used tear gas to scatter Communist-led mobs who seized a government workshop and tried to take over a gas plant.

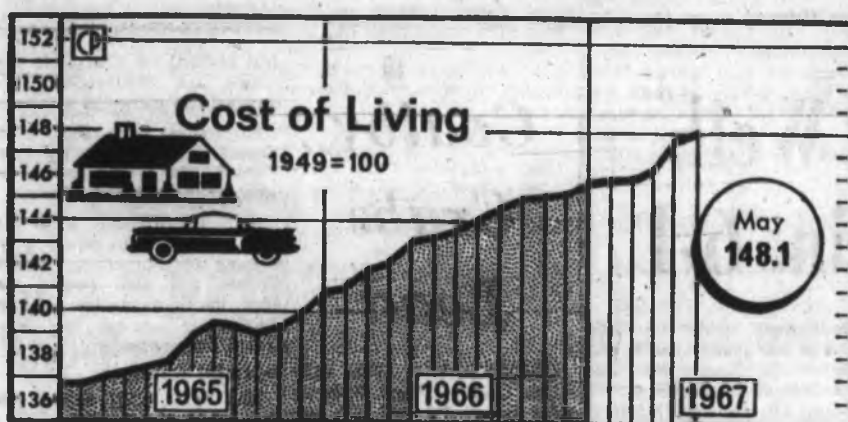

Informants said Communist leaders were smarting under Peking's criticism of their failure to get public support for their bloody May riots and have stepped up their labor nuisance campaign.

Kelp Harvest Company Aim

A new British Columbia company is going to try its hand at kelp harvesting.

North Pacific Marine, from Vancouver, proposes to harvest kelp off the Queen Charlottes and to market a by-product that is used to "set" various foodstuffs. It has ordered a special ship for the purpose.

It is not the first effort of the kind to have been made in B.C. An earlier try bogged down through lack of an economical market in which to sell its products.

The consumer price index increased three-tenths of a point between April 1 and May 1, from 147.8 to 148.1.

All prices except food and clothing increased. Index base is 1949 prices. —(CP)

Docks Could Be Boon In Grants for Taxes

If the Ogden Point docks are included in a CNR grants-in-lieu-of-taxes plan, it could mean $100,000 to Victoria, members of city council were told Thursday.

A resolution will be sent to the federal department of transport and its minister, J. W. Pickersgill, asking that the two docks be included. They are estimated to be a $1,000,000 installation.

The plan, announced some time ago by Mr. Pickersgill, would see the railway company paying grants in lieu of taxes for their holdings in communities.

For purposes of taxation, the CNR properties would be assessed as "private companies."

Authority was given for the expenditure of $2,190 to level and gravel city-owned property on the southwest corner of Caledonia and Cook for use as a parking lot for Royal Athletic Park.

"This should be constantly kept in mind. We must have more parking space around Royal Athletic Park," said Ald. Percy Frampton.

City council supported a resolution from the city of Calgary asking the federal government to exempt municipalities from sales tax on goods and materials they purchase.

"It makes sense to support this. We tried it before without success, but there's no harm in trying again," said Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow.

A serious fire hazard in the old YMC building on Blanshard, the subject of several reports by Fire Chief Eric Simmons, will be considered by city council committee next week.

City Manager Dennis Young said the company agreed in 1964 to pay $20,000 for a piece of city-owned land adjacent to the high-rise apartment overlooking West Bay.

Two deferrals
Three payments totaling $15,000 were made, after which two deferrals were given on the final $5,000 payment.

In his absence and through a lack of knowledge of the background of the deal, a 90-day default notice was sent out, rather than another extension.

When the default notice expired, the property automatically reverted to the city, and the $15,000 already paid was liable to forfeiture.

Mr. Young said he felt it was not the city's intention to take this action. Meanwhile, a certified cheque for the full amount of the final payment was received.

A letter from the realty company's lawyers suggested a plan whereby the default notice would be waived and an extension given from the date the final payment was due until the date the cheque was received.

Council accepted the proposal without demur.

The old building is part of a proposed $4,000,000 development, on the east side of Blanshard between Yates and View, which would see a 10-storey hotel tower arising out of a two-storey building which would cover the whole block.

Included in the complex would be a new theatre to replace the Capitol.

Following the recommendation of the Greater Victoria Intermunicipal Committee, city council declared Monday, July 3, a holiday for civic employees. City Hall will be closed.

The federal and provincial governments have declared Monday the holiday celebrating Dominion Day, and it is expected that all district municipalities will do likewise.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow gave notice Thursday that he is going to ask for frequent reports on the progress being made by the special convention centre committee led by Ald. Percy Frampton.

Ald. Frampton said the committee, which was appointed by the mayor following receipt of a report on the convention centre, had already met. He said he would supply as much information as possible.

City Rectifies $15,000 Mixup

A technicality which could have cost a Victoria real estate firm $15,000 and a piece of property was hurried by city council Thursday.

It was explained that the municipality had no wish to take advantage of a move which arose from a lack of understanding of negotiations between the city and West Bay Investments Ltd.

City Manager Dennis Young said the company agreed in 1964 to pay $20,000 for a piece of city-owned land adjacent to the high-rise apartment overlooking West Bay.

Two deferrals
Three payments totaling $15,000 were made, after which two deferrals were given on the final $5,000 payment.

July 1 Rites For QOR

The Queen's Own Rifles fired a feu de joie on the first day of Confederation in 1876, and on July 1 they will repeat the fusillade in Victoria.

The first Battalion of the regiment was given formal permission Thursday by city council to "pass through the city streets under arms" and with bugles blowing, and to fire the joyous salute on Dominion Day.

"Normally this permission is given only to freemen of the city, but in this case I think we are all happy to make an exception," said Mayor Hugh Stephen.

Employees Given Advice

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—The president of the British Columbia division of the Canadian Union of Public Employees said Thursday municipal employees have a responsibility to protect the names of the communities for which they work.

Speaking at the annual CUPE convention, George Boone said that working for a municipality means more than just ensuring a decent standard of living.

"Many a community has been judged unfairly by the thoughtless actions of some of its employees," he said. "Such employees should instead act as a liaison between the public and the municipality."

Mideast Countries

Many Canadians Still There

OTTAWA (CP)—The majority of Canadians known officially to be in Israel and the Arab states hording her before the outbreak of war in the Middle East were still there Thursday, reports the external affairs department.

It said that less than two weeks before the war started last Monday there were 580 Canadians registered with their embassy in Israel, 371 in Lebanon, 138 in the United Arab Republic, 38 in Jordan and 26 in Syria.

The department emphasized these were minimum numbers. Canadians were not required to register at their embassies abroad and many did not. There was no accurate way of knowing how many tourists were in the warring countries, let alone government and business personnel and dependents.

 Two chartered planes evacuated 123 Canadians from Lebanon Wednesday. By Thursday, Ambassador John Stearns in Cairo estimated only about 30 Canadians were left in the U.A.R.

Arrangements for further evacuations in the war zone will be put into effect whenever necessary, the department said.

It cited the situation in Israel as an illustration of how difficult it is for the government here to fix the numbers of Canadians in the war theatre. On May 23-24 there were 580 Canadians registered with the embassy in Tel Aviv. After war broke out, additional Canadians registered, bringing the total to almost 900.

PLANS AFOOT
 Plans are being worked out with the British in other Arab states for air, sea and road evacuation as necessary, the department said.

King Credits Air Attacks

By DAVID L. DUGAS

AMMAN, Jordan (UPI)—King Hussein of Jordan, appearing tired, unsmiling and still in battle dress, Thursday blamed his country's defeat in the Mideast war on Israel's "overwhelming air attacks" and desertion "by our many friends."

Jordan appeared to back off from Arab charges that U.S. and British aircraft had supported Israeli action in the initial phases of the war.

NO KNOWLEDGE
 (An RAF spokesman in London said foreign military attaches were told this afternoon at a briefing in Amman that "Jordan had no knowledge of any British or U.S. aircraft operating against Jordan.")

(In Jerusalem, Israeli officials played a tape recording of what it said was an intercepted conversation between U.A.R. President Nasser and Hussein in which the two Arab leaders allegedly agreed to fabricate the charge that U.S. and British planes were involved in the Mideast war.)

HEAVY LOSSES
 The 32-year-old monarch told a news conference at his military headquarters here that Jordanian troops had suffered "tremendous" losses. "Many have died," he said. No figures were given.

He did not name those countries he felt deserted Jordan at his hour of need. Jordan has received substantial military supplies from the United States.

LEFT ALONE
 Hussein said simply in casting the accusation: "Needless to say, we were disappointed because this country that we felt had sympathy in many hearts... this country that was always left alone by the world, by our many friends all over the world... by those who stand for justice and right."

He vowed that Jordan "once again will fight to the last" if the war breaks out again despite the cease-fire accepted by his country, Egypt and Israel.

END TO REPORTS
 Hussein's appearance put a quick end to reports that had been circulating in Rome and other European capitals that he was going to London.

The king said Jordan had "fought bravely" against "almost impossible odds." Hussein said after the UN security council called for a cease-fire, "orders were given to our armed forces to fire only in defence of positions we held at the time. But the enemy continued its onslaught, never ceasing until last night."

Eastern Forests Burning

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rainfall late Wednesday and Thursday dampened the forest fire hazard in most provinces but in Nova Scotia the danger remained acute.

Rain Thursday brought a major fire in the province's Pictou County under control but a forestry official said its effects "won't last long; the woods will dry out this afternoon."

The fire destroyed 5,000 acres of woods, at least two houses and a number of barns and killed scores of cattle and sheep.

The blaze, which old-timers said was the county's worst since 1917, erupted in heavy stands of spruce and fir about 15 miles east of New Glasgow at noon Wednesday.

Rain over some areas of New Brunswick early Thursday eased the situation and forestry officials said all fires burning in the province were under control or being contained.

Forty-nine forest fires were reported burning in Ontario and danger ratings throughout the province were moderate except for the districts of Sioux Lookout, Kenora and Kempenfelt where they were high.

The department of lands and forests reported that 55,000 acres were burned June 1-7. The total acreage burned by fires in 1966 was only 14,000.

Travel restrictions in northwestern Ontario were lifted Thursday.

No new serious fires were reported in British Columbia. Firefighters continued to mop up fires in the Smethers area where fires last weekend burned about 2,500 acres.

Nineteen Saanich Parks

Staff Ready for Busy Program

Nineteen parks in Saanich this summer will be the rendezvous for thousands of children in a municipally-sponsored crafts and sports program.

Lloyd Sinclair, Saanich's senior parks supervisor, has hired 32 high school girls and married women to run the program, which starts July 4.

Last year, 3,000 children enrolled for the sessions, which run from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday, and Mr. Sinclair expects a larger attendance this year.

SUCCESSFUL PART
 "This has been an exceedingly successful part of our parks program, and we expect it will be popular again this summer," he said.

The supervisors and their assistants are being briefed on the program and on Saturday, June 17, will spend the entire day in a park attending a seminar on the objectives of the summer plans.

CONSENT NEEDED
 The materials for the arts and crafts sessions will be supplied by Saanich. Children enrolling will need the consent of their parents.

Children should be between five and 14 years of age. Swimming will be included in the program, and a swimming meet at the end of the summer will involve children from Saanich, Oak Bay, Victoria and Esquimalt.

OPEN HOUSE
 Mr. Sinclair also plans to hold an "open house" in Hampton Park at the end of the season, when parents will be able to see the accomplishments of their children.

To enrol, all a child has to do is show up at 10 a.m. on July 4

Floods Take Seven lives

U.S. Pilot On Display

HONG KONG (Reuters)—Hanoi newspapers Thursday published a picture of what they claimed was the pilot of the 2,000th United States plane shot down over North Vietnam. They named the pilot as 35-year-old Lt.-Col. Collins Henry Haines of New Jersey. The papers said he was captured when his reconnaissance plane was shot down over Thanh Hoa province June 5.

Charles

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — It was supposed to be Mr. and Mrs. Stephen D. Stair's 50th wedding anniversary. But the day before Mrs. Stair sued for divorce. Since her husband retired from farming, she contended, he has been "wasting his time drinking and attending chicken fights."

He is 73 and she is 67.

MONTREAL — Britain's Princess Alexandra and her husband, Angus Ogilvy, have visited Expo 67. They dispersed with the customary limousine, taking instead to a small trailer-like vehicle which thousands have used for trips around the fairgrounds.

LONDON — Prince Charles could go bald if he doesn't change his hairstyle. The warning came from hairdresser Martin Fenton. Charles parts his hair on the left, which is all wrong, says 57-year-old Fenton. "Many men suffer premature hair loss by parting on the left because they think it is the correct side for a man. That is all wrong, the hair must be combed whichever way it falls."

OTTAWA — Governor-General Roland Michener will be invested as a Knight of Grace of the Order of St. John at a Government House ceremony. He will also be announced as Prior of the Order in Canada.

SANTA MONICA, Calif. — Mrs. Les Borenhead — Janet Lawson of the singing Lennon Sisters — and her newborn son are reported "doing well" in St. John's Hospital here. Bernherdi is a production manager at the ABC television network.

PARIS — A 56-year-old Polish engineer armed with a long knife has tried to enter U.S. Ambassador Charles Bohlen's car to assassinate him. A spokesman at the U.S. embassy said a policeman on guard at Bohlen's residence seized the man before he got the car door open. The man, Maurice Gordon, of Lgd. Pohand, gave no reason for his action.

LONDON — Authoress Pamela Frankan, 59, died at her home in the suburb of Hampstead after a short illness.

Pearson Hints at Retirement

Expo Permanent Centre?

By FRASER KELLY
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Pearson announced Thursday night the federal government is considering turning the Expo site into a permanent Centre of International Development.

And in the same speech he gave another broad hint that his days as an active politician may be numbered. The prime minister spoke to the Canadian Political Science Association banquet at Carleton University.

"I am comforted by the thought that, God willing, I may soon be an academic again, starting where I left off somewhat to my own surprise in 1928," he said. Then he added lightly "soon I will again become an authority instead of merely a cabinet leak."

The prime minister argued for much more co-operation between politicians and political scientists particularly in the planning of external aid.

That's where Expo came in.

"If free civilization is to survive and grow, we must very soon find vastly improved methods for extending the benefits of modern existence to the whole world community of man."

"One idea for a new Canadian initiative in meeting this challenge that should be considered is for the establishment of a centre for international development; it might even be on the site of Expo 67."

Pleased, Not Satisfied

Fair Revenues Surpass Hopes

MONTREAL (CP) — Philippe de Gaspé Beaubien, Expo's director of operations, said Thursday net revenues received until the end of May by the world's fair totalled $47,960,000.

Mr. Beaubien told a press conference the figure had surpassed the expectations of fair officials, and advanced admission ticket sales helped boost the revenues so far.

Asked whether he is satisfied with the encouraging inflow of revenues, the Expo official replied:

"No, I am not satisfied... but we're pleased. We know we can still do better."

He described the revenue collected so far as 'actual cash in the till'.

COST TOLD

The total cost of the fair was about $379,446,680 with an estimated total revenue of $241,699,640 for an expected deficit of nearly $137,747,040.

Mr. Beaubien said the total received through the advance sale of admission passports amounted to $32,500,000 compared with the objective of $22,000,000 and that receipts from ticket sales at the gate were $2,570,000.

NO SURPRISE

"It does not surprise us that gate sales are not higher," he said, adding that the over-all ticket sales were extremely favorable when one considers that the last world's fair in Brussels netted only $17,000,000 in admissions and concessions.

He said revenue from concessions including food and non-food sources such as rides and transportation and concession services were $3,300,000. Revenues from the performing arts through ticket sales for the World Festival events held in conjunction with Expo amounted to $3,300,000.

Officer Heard Nothing But Shots

Hearing Opens on Murder Attempts

"Other than the shots ringing out I heard nobody nor saw anybody in the house," city police Inspector Lester Clark told a preliminary hearing Thursday in central magistrate's court.

He was one of 24 Crown witnesses heard by Magistrate William Ostler during the first day of the preliminary hearing of evidence in two charges of attempted murder.

Frank Joseph Bedry, also known as Frank Joseph Layton, of 572 John, is charged with attempting to murder Mrs. Molly May Robertson, 511 McNaughton, and Constable Harry Hoshal on May 4.

Prosecutor John MacIntyre said six more Crown witnesses will give testimony today as the hearing continues.

No Response

Insp. Clark said that he and Constable Hoshal forced open the two rear doors of 572 John about 5:30 a.m. after getting no response to his demand for the man believed to be inside the house to come out.

He said he had kicked open the inner of the two doors. "As the door swung open, I saw a large butcher knife stuck in the right side of the door casing," he said.

Court was told Constable Hoshal removed the knife and turned it place it on top of a refrigerator alongside the door.

I've Been Hit

"As he twisted into position to put up the knife, shots sounded out and he said, 'I've been hit,'" the inspector said.

He said the door started to swing shut, and "I fired one shot from my .33 through the door—I heard nothing but."

Constable John Burdny said he had been stationed about seven feet from the rear of the house at the time of the shooting.

"I heard four rapid shots, followed by a heavy shot," he said. He saw Constable Hoshal come out the back door, doubled over.

Labor Report Under Study

Representatives of St. Joseph's and Royal Jubilee Hospitals are in Vancouver today to discuss recommendations of a conciliation report into a dispute with their operating engineers.

Terms of the majority report, signed by the conciliation board chairman and the hospitals' representative, and the minority report, handed down by the engineers' representatives, have not been released.

The envoys from the local hospitals will be among representatives from 23 hospitals who bargained jointly with the engineers.

Constable Blake Green told court he fired six teargas shells at the house. Five went into the building but one hit a window frame and bounced off.

He told court that after a lapse of about 20 minutes from firing the teargas, the front door of the house opened and he pulled a man he identified as the accused from the front of the house.

A .22-calibre semi-automatic rifle was produced in court as evidence.

Insp. Clark testified he found the rifle on the bedroom floor of the John Street house.

Ballistics Test

A Victoria sporting goods store proprietor told court he sold a rifle of the same model to the accused on April 15.

George

A Vancouver police ballistics expert said spent bullets and shell casings introduced as evidence were shown by microscopic comparison to have been fired by the weapon.

Mrs. Molly Robertson, a cashier at a Douglas Street restaurant told court she had arrived home at about 3 a.m. and had been walking on the sidewalk toward the front door of her McNaughton Street home.

She said she didn't get quite halfway to the house when Frank Bedry came up to her, with a gun pointing toward her.

Man Who Fired

She told court she tried to get the gun away from him, and a shot was fired into the ground.

"When I saw the gun was loaded, I tried to get away," she identified the accused as the man who fired the gun at her as she tried to make her way around to the rear of the house.

She said she had known the accused for about eight years and had lived common law with him from the end of May, 1962, until the end of August, 1965.

When he had fired the gun at her, she said, she felt a pain in her back and another in her leg. "All of a sudden he turned around and fired at the truck," she said.

Driven Home

She had been drive home by a fellow employee, Barry Waddell, 20, of 3367 Oak Drive, whose duties included driving the late shift workers home in a small van.

The young driver testified that when he pulled up in front of the house, Mrs. Robertson asked him to wait until she got into the house because there were no lights on.

Mr. Waddell said he saw a man come out of the bushes when Mrs. Robertson was about halfway up the sidewalk toward the house, and grab her.

He said he would not know the man if he saw him again.

'Not This Again'

"Molly said, 'No, no — not this again,'" he said.

Mrs. Robertson told court she didn't remember saying the words.

Mr. Waddell told court the man had a rifle, and after a short struggle the gun went off.

He said he started to pull away in the van when he saw the man raise the gun and fire at the truck.

Court was told the bullet went through the passenger window and ricocheted off the windshield on the driver's side.

Removed Bullet

A doctor told court he had removed a .22-calibre bullet from Mrs. Robertson's right side, about three inches above the right hip.

He said she was also wounded in the left thigh.

Mrs. Robertson said she spent six days in hospital.

Magistrate Ostler committed Bedry for trial in a higher court on the charge of attempting to murder Mrs. Robertson. Preliminary hearing on the other charge continues.

Marijuana Case

Trafficking Verdict: Guilty

It took an assize court jury nearly 12 hours Thursday to find Roger Frank Hunter, 19, guilty of possession of marijuana for the purpose of trafficking.

Hunter will be sentenced shortly after 10:30 a.m. today after Mr. Justice Victor Dryer hears testimony of witnesses, introduced by defence counsel Alan Bigelow.

Maximum penalty for possession for the purpose of trafficking is life imprisonment.

TWO STAGES

The nine men and three women of the jury had to consider the charge in two stages, first for possession, when they left the court at 11:34 a.m. after an hour-long charge by Mr. Justice Victor Dryer. They returned at 12:48 for more direction on the law on possession. After lunch the jury returned to deliberate and brought in a verdict of guilty at 4:05 p.m.

After hearing argument from the defence counsel and prosecutor Rodney Taylor, Mr. Justice Dryer again charged the jury. They went to the jury room at 5:05 p.m., returning at 5:50 p.m. for a discussion with the judge, to hear the transcript of evidence given by RCMP Const. Donald Kennedy and to inquire about two points of law.

The jury departed again at 6:19 p.m. The verdict was reached a few minutes before 11 p.m.

Lots of Seats For Fantasy

Tickets are still available for the Greater Victoria School District elementary students' presentation of Journey for Two at the Oak Bay junior high school at 7:30 p.m. today and 2:30 and 7:30 p.m. Saturday. The bakery, occupied by Mr. Nesbitt, at Esquimalt, built on piles, fell with a tremendous crash at 4½ o'clock yesterday afternoon. At the time of the accident, the two bakers employed on the premises and two sailors were in the bakery and barely escaped with their lives. A boat crew from the Malacca, having left a few minutes before, just saved themselves from death.

Experimental Math Class Successful

Students on Own to Attend or Not

By BILL STAVDAL

Jail was never like this. At Victoria senior secondary school last spring, mathematics teacher Frederick Francis gave four of his classes a choice.

They could attend his lectures full-time, or as little as two out of five periods. Sixty per cent of their math class time was given to the students for independent study in any subject.

As the school year ends, most of Mr. Francis' students are still in the room with him each day. Some are in the school library, others gather in a special study room set aside for them, and everyone seems happy with the experiment.

About 10 students in the four classes found the sudden taste of freedom too rich, including a quarter found rolling dice. They are back in class without an option.

"Even the slower students are working well," said Mr. Francis as he left a class unattended Thursday to discuss his program.

"Best of all, they have learned responsibility," and this is what we're after.

Mr. Francis' experiment, endorsed by Vic High principal Duncan Lorimer, is one small aspect of the changing climate of education. Stung by criticisms from within and without the teaching profession, educators are starting to humanize the classroom.

Mr. Francis, 43, of 3930 Hobbs Street, already holds a master's degree in education. A year ago he travelled on his own money to study methods at revolutionary John Marshall high school in Portland, Ore.

He became intrigued by reports on Campbell River High School, where principal John Young has successfully given his students freedom inconceivable a few years ago.

Mr. Francis arranged a week-long transfer of math teachers between Vic High and Campbell River, and came home agog.

He found a new school "beautifully equipped, with a beautiful big library," complete with 34 individual study cubicles.

Most students in Campbell River are given complete freedom to attend class or do anything they choose within the school, short of disturbing others.

Francis

The students from Grades 11 to 13 are divided into "senior scholars" and "subject scholars."

Senior scholars — 80 per cent of the enrolment — are given unrestricted freedom to attend classes or study independently. This privilege requires unanimous assent of a student's teachers.

The remaining 20 per cent of less-able or less-responsible students are classed as subject scholars in certain subjects only, Mr. Francis found.

"There's a nice tone in the school," he recalled. "There's a pleasant relationship with the staff. You either co-operate or you don't come to school."

After conferring with his principal Mr. Francis adapted the Campbell River concept to four of his six math classes.

Students were told they must attend a minimum of two classes out of five. The rest of the time was their own.

Poorer students skipped a class now and then to sample the new feeling of independence, Mr. Francis feels. But they realized their need of instruction and didn't abuse their freedom.

Students I spoke to in class and in an unsupervised study room agreed almost unanimously that the experiment is a good one. They were working at their own speed — or cramming for an exam in another subject.

"If I need help in some problem, I go to class and get straightened out," one boy commented.

The system may be expanded at Vic High next fall.

Mr. Francis and Mr. Lorimer view the experiment as a stepping-stone between the regulated high school classroom and the often bewildering freedom of university.

"Many good high school students flounder when they get to university because they don't know how to study independently," Mr. Lorimer observed.

And Mr. Francis declared: "The biggest thing a kid can learn is responsibility. It's more important than math."

PERSONAL MENTION

By Dorothy Wrotnowski

In this year of Centennial celebrations it almost seems a bit thin to talk about a golden anniversary.

However, the golden anniversary tea put on by the Victoria Progressive Conservative Women's Association was quite a gala affair.

The Georgian lounge at the Empress was the setting and it was pretty well filled.

Mrs. M. B. Shaw, the president, dressed in a turquoise blue suit and matching hat, did the honors and introductions, etc. Before she was through someone spilled that it was Mrs. Shaw's wedding anniversary and then Olive Dwyer Wilson stepped forward to say that it was her wedding anniversary, too.

In her short speech, Mrs. Shaw paid great tribute to the late Sir Richard McBride, the first native son to become Premier of B.C. and the youngest provincial premier of this century. Sir Richard was succeeded by the Hon. W. J. Bennett and Mrs. Shaw drew attention to the fact that members of both these families were special guests at the tea. They were Mrs. F. B. Hood (Anne McBride), Mrs. MacGregor Macintosh (Peggy McBride) and Miss Gladys Irving.

Two other guests, Miss Jeanie Roberts and Miss Mary Roberts, were given pins "as a token of our esteem and appreciation for the splendid contribution made by your mother to the Conservative party." Mrs. Roberts was one of the three co-founders of the Women's Association.

Mr. Herbert Anson, former MLA, always a forceful and forthright speaker, briefly traced the history of the party in B.C.

And impressed upon his listeners the importance of backing their elected leaders and warned of committing suicide from within.

This fact of backing leadership was firmly reiterated by Deane Finlayson of Vancouver, former provincial party leader, when he addressed the group.

All the past presidents, except Mrs. D. C. F. MacArthur and Mrs. Richard Bell, were there to receive their past president pins in person. Mrs. MacArthur was unable to be there because of a slight accident and Mr. Finlayson offered to take her the pin in person. Mrs. Richard Bell, the former Margaret Harvey, now lives in St. John's, Nfld., and there was a telegram from her saying how sorry she was not to be there to talk over old times.

Other special guests at the tea were Mrs. J. Sutherland Brown, former Mayor and Mrs. Claude L. Harrison, Mr. Ross Simpson, Mr. Alex H. Beed, Mrs. James H. Beatty, Miss Hilma Hansen, Mr. Malcolm Wickham, leader of the B.C. party, and Mrs. Wickham and Mrs. Deane Finlayson from Vancouver, Mrs. Brian K. D. Smith, Mrs. Ronald Chaffin and Mrs. Barbara Watts, secretary of the Provincial Women's Association from Vancouver.

Grandmother's Necklace For 'Something Old'

A gold pendant studded with emeralds was the "something old" talisman for Patricia Anne Metcalf when she became the bride of Lawrence Robert Jones at a recent ceremony in Garden City United Church.

The pendant, which belonged to her great-grandmother, was the only jewelry according to her floor-length gown of crystal sheer chiffon over tulle, fashioned on empire lines. Sleeves ended in tiny points. Lace highlighted the waistline and front panels of the gown which was topped with a matching sheer cardinal coat on train. Her bouffant veil of illusion net misted from a headpiece of chiffon petals. The bride carried a bouquet of yellow gladioli and roses with white stephanotis.

Rev. H. R. Whitman officiated at the double-ring ceremony uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald J. Metcalf of Victoria, and the son of Lt.-Cmdr. Robert H. Jones and Mrs. Jones of Trenton, Ontario, formerly of Victoria. Mr. Metcalf gave his daughter in marriage.

Yellow gladioli, mauve stocks and white narcissi decorated the church and altar for the service. Yellow satin roses with white ribbons marked the pews. Mrs. Ruth Powell was the organist, and K. Nelson sang "I'll Walk Beside You" during the signing of the register.

Matron of honor, Mrs. Robert Hehn, wore a floor-length gown of yellow peau de soie fashioned with a lace bodice. Bridesmaid Mrs. Jack McLeod and bridesmaids, the Misses Linda Lambie and Noreen Bradshaw, wore identical floor-length gowns styled on empire lines of green, and matching green blouse. The ensemble was accented by a white carnation corsage.

Out of town guests included the groom's parents, Lieut.-Comm. and Mrs. Robert H. Jones and Edward of Trenton, Ont. Dr. Marshall Grant and Mrs. Grant, Brian and Wendy, Mrs. Barbara Walton, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Synchuk, all of Alberta. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Smith, Mr. and Mrs. L. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. M. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. H. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. L. Miles, Mr. and Mrs. H. Shang, Mr. and Mrs. J. Swanson, all from up-island points. Mr. and Mrs. Ron France, Vancouver. ## Elk, Beaver Lakes to Close For One-Day Algae Spray

Elk and Beaver lakes will be closed to swimmers next Monday, when Saanich sprays the waters to control algae. The closure will be in effect from noon to 8 p.m. After the algae has been attacked, Saanich's parks department will turn its attention to the weeds.

ALWAYS ALGAE

"There has always been an algae problem, but we're really going to work on keeping it under control," Lloyd Sinclair, Saanich's senior parks supervisor said Thursday.

He said he didn't know the compound which would be used for the spray. Bert Richmond, parks superintendent, selected the chemical and he is on holiday.

SPENDING $30,000

Saanich has taken over maintenance of Beaver and Elk Lake park, which has been transferred from the control of the city of Victoria to the Regional Board.

Saanich plans to spend about $30,000 improving and maintaining the parks this year. It has already enlarged the parking area at Beaver Lake and has cleared a lot of the underbrush surrounding the lakes.

Mr. Sinclair said special floats will be placed in Elk Lake to restrict power boats. There will be a new lifeguard stand, and three boats will be used for patrols.

$45,000 Pledged For Israel

Victoria's Jewish community has not $45,000 as its pledge to aid the Israelis in their waning war against the Arab nations.

The money will be raised through pledges and a bank loan, members of the Jewish community decided at a special meeting Wednesday.

An earlier plan to mortgage the synagogue to raise the money was discarded.

Musicians Win Honors

Young musicians from Victoria won top honors in three classes Thursday at the British Columbia Centennial Music Festival in Vancouver.

Among them were members of the Greater Victoria Schools Junior Orchestra, which was recommended for the national finals.

The Monterey school choir was second in its class.

Individual winners were Donald Ralph Mayer, who took top marks in the junior wind instrument class, and Ian Franklin, who was judged best in the senior wind instrument class.

Queen Will Miss City's Dancers

Victoria's champion Highland dancers have been ignored in the selection of a group of dancers to represent the province before Queen Elizabeth June 30, according to Mrs. Adeline Duncan, Victoria Highland dance teacher.

Twelve girls who belong to a Vancouver group — the B.C. Highland Lassies — will dance for Queen Elizabeth in Ottawa on June 30.

According to a press release from the Canadian Centennial Commission, auditions were held throughout the province by the Canadian Folk Society to pick "an ethnic group to represent B.C." in the National Centennial Festival.

NEVER HEARD

Mrs. Duncan said Thursday, "I've certainly never heard of any auditions being held for this."

"If we'd heard of them, we would have been there." Western Highland dance champions from Victoria include Gail Bamford, Angus McKenzie and Cheryl Jackson.

SELECT GROUP

"I've been asked to select a group of dancers to represent B.C. at a centennial festival in Halifax," continued Mrs. Duncan, "and I certainly wouldn't think of ignoring the Vancouver dancers."

Mrs. Duncan said she would be going to Vancouver to invite the best dancers there to join the group of 25 pipers and 15 dancers she will be taking to the festival.

VICTORIANS TOPS

"All the same, Victoria has the top champions, and we should have heard if auditions were being held for a group to dance before the Queen," said Mrs. Duncan.

The girls selected are the same group that in 1964 appeared on British television and at the Edinburgh Festival. In 1965 they travelled with the Royal Marines Tattoo.

Garden Notes

Begonias Need Care

By M. V. CHESNUT

Earlier this season I gave detailed instructions on how to start begonia bulbs into growth, together with some notes on the classes and varieties of these lovely plants, so useful for providing color in the shaded portions of the garden. Now that the started plants are planted out, I feel it is about time to provide some notes on their summer care.

Begonias are not at all difficult to manage, and if given a few small attentions they should not only provide gorgeous blooms in those problem beds and planters around the north side of the house, but also they should develop some nice plump bulbs for lifting this fall.

These plants do best in rather cool conditions. They appreciate a little morning sunlight but should have shade during the hottest part of the day. A fairly thick mulch over the surface of the bed between the plants will help create the cool, moist, woody conditions they favor; rotted leaves, half-rotted compost or ordinary peat moss make good mulching materials.

Except for the dwarf multifloras, the plants tend to get a bit tall and floppy as the season progresses and will need some support. Thin bamboo canes are good, placed as unobtrusively as possible, and by hooking the leaves around such a cane, no tying should be necessary.

In their native home, begonias are accustomed to considerable atmospheric humidity, and our air is inclined to be a little on the dry side for them. For this reason, it is a very good idea to treat your plants to a misty overhead spray of clear water in the evening following a hot, dry day. Don't worry about wetting the foliage or flowers — it doesn't hurt them in the least.

Watering the roots can be a bit tricky, for the begonia is a shallow rooter and it isn't easy to maintain an even, only-just-moist condition in such shallow soil; this is why a mulch is so useful and effective. But while begonias must never be allowed to become bone dry, by the same token they cannot tolerate a soggy, waterlogged soil. It is a fairly common thing for over-watered plants to develop brown patches in the leaves, caused by a lack of air in too-wet soil.

The feeding of begonias is somewhat critical too, but here the plant co-operates by putting up signals to indicate whether it is getting too much or too little to eat. Under-sized leaves and a pale green color is a sure sign of malnutrition, while a bluish or purplish tinge in the leaf color indicates a touch of indigestion from over-feeding.

As I mentioned before, begonias seem to have a special fondness for seafood in their diet — rather peculiar in natives of inland tropical mountain-sides. Fortunately, there is no lack of fertilizers which have their origin in the sea; some good ones are Alaska Fish, Alginate Liquid Seaweed and Liquid Blue Whale. Apply in water, mixing according to the directions on the label, or perhaps a little weaker and often than the recommended dosage.

As each of the big double male blossoms develop, you will notice his insignificant little single-flowered wife alongside — some blooms are polygamous and have two wives. These female blossoms, each with a triangular ovary or embryo seed pod just behind the flower, contribute nothing to the display. Their function is to make seed, and as any seeds formed must be at the expense of the bulb, so these small single flowers should be nipped off as they appear.

Begonias seldom need spraying, as bugs don't seem to be overly fond of the leaves. The tubers, though, are often invaded by soil grubs and larvae, and it is good insurance to give the plants one good deep watering with chlordane emulsion, one tablespoonful per gallon and about two cupfuls per plant, poured around the roots at a time when the soil is already damp to a good depth.

ERMA BOMBECK Relates Hairy Story

He Didn't Get the Message

A mother on playground duty the other afternoon told a hairy story of what happened when she took her son to see the Academy Award-winning picture, A Man For All Seasons.

At first she had hesitated. She wondered if a 12-year-old boy could comprehend the story of a man who stood firm on a principle. A man who opposed the King of England and his right to divorce one woman and marry another and still remain in his church. A man who eventually died for this principle.

"Did you like the picture?" she asked on the way home.

"I thought it was neat," he answered.

"Which part did you like best?"

"The part where they chopped his head off. We don't have neat punishments anymore. Just dumb stuff with a lot of lawyers talking all the time."

"Didn't you think he was a brave man?"

"Sure, stuck away in a dungeon all those months with no TV, just those yucky books. I hate to read."

"Do you have any idea why he was put in a dungeon?"

"Sure. He and the King had an argument. I think they wanted the same girl."

"That's not right. The King wanted to marry someone when he was already married."

"What's a big deal about that? Maybe there were a lot of fellows who wanted to be bachelors. If he married two women, he'd be doing them a big favor."

"Divorce was against the laws of the church, that's what was wrong. Didn't you hear him make his speech about justice?"

"No, that's when I had to go under my jacket to eat the peanuts. You said they were too noisy, so I muffled 'em."

"There aren't many people who would take such punishment for their integrity," she persisted.

"I guess you've never seen Bruce Watkins clean up when the teacher asks who tied all the gym shoes together, have you?"

"You have to understand that integrity is honor. It's a code you live by and die for if you have to. Can you comprehend that?"

"I guess so. Hey, how much did you pay to get me in the movie?"

"Two dollars. Why?"

"I was thinking. I've only been 13 since April 27. If I had scratched a little you could have saved a dollar twenty-five."

The mother sighed sadly as she finished the story. Who wouldn't? She just blew a buck twenty-five on integrity and it isn't even deductible!

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

Stars to Meet Queen

LONDON (NANA) — Not only will Sean Connery be present at the royal premiere of his latest James Bond picture, You Only Live Twice, but so will Diana Ghem. They will both be presented to Queen Elizabeth, along with Dick Van Dyke and producers Harry Saltzman and Coby Broccoli. Also director Lewis Gilbert. Also there will be Danny Kaye, Sammy Davis, Jr., Jerry Lewis, Clint Eastwood, Ariana Arkin, etc. The new Bond picture cost $10,000,000, which is almost more than all the others combined.

Frank Sinatra's picture, The Naked Runner, is still being put together. Frankie, fully dressed of course, ran through the film in something like four weeks flat. There are, however, some bits and pieces to be resolved, I'm told. My devout hope is that this one will be better than Frankie's previous picture, Anastasia on a Queen.

Now that Britt Ekland is safely in Hollywood with husband Peter Sellers, I can tell you that she was actually on the boat to go with Peter to America when for some reason of her own, she got off and returned to London, then on to Sweden where the story is that her mother is still seriously ill. Anyway, Britt's handsome little brother Carl is in Hollywood with her and it wouldn't surprise me at all if he landed a part in Peter's picture, now changed from The Party to RSVP.

While Marge Fanning is in the U.S. is stating emphatically that at 48 she has no intention of retiring from her marvellous career in ballet in London. Her Blackmail is doing just as strongly that she has no desire to return to The Avengers, the TV series she created and left for Diana Rigg to take over.

Diana now has to leave. A TV series is just about the hardest work there is and Honor doesn't have to work that hard. She has proved how good an actress she is with her West End stage appearance in Wait Until Dark. She was as good as Leo Remick who created the role on Broadway and that's as high a praise as we can give.

A Rolling Stone and a Beale were in the news on the same day and it was interesting that Rolling Stone Bill Wyman received more space than Beale Paul McCartney. Bill with his son Stephen. Paul meeting long-time girl friend Jane Asher at the airport on her return from the States. I think Paul could marry Jane now without too much fuss — as you know, BBC has banned one of the songs in the new Beale album, Sergeant Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band, believing it "could encourage a permissive attitude towards drug-taking." I don't believe it for a minute.

The association of Terence Stamp and model Jean Shroff has been as long, perhaps longer than McCartney-Asher. They date only each other, but still no mention of marriage. Some people are actually afraid of the institution and with reason. A couple can go together for a long time, like Susan Strasberg and her Mr. Jones. Vince Edwards and Kathy Kersh, for instance, got married and now poof, it's all over.

Mandy Rice Davies has completely changed her Christine Keeler-Prefumo days' image since her marriage to Israeli airline steward Rahel Shaul. She had been visiting her family in Birmingham, but flew back immediately to Israel at the start of the crisis.

SYDNEY HARRIS

On Quotemanship

One of my private hobbies over the years has been tracking down quotations attributed to famous men. In no other field has there been so much fraud and deceit, century after century. And once a false quote becomes imbedded in tradition, it is almost impossible to uproot it.

Also working the same mine — in a much more thorough and academic way — is Paul F. Boller Jr., whose new book, Quotemanship, has recently arrived on my desk. Prof.

Boller's engrossing book is subtitled, The Use and Abuse of Quotations for Polemical and Other Purposes.

"Quotemanship," according to the author, is a literary form of Stephen Potter's Gamesmanship — the use of quotations as "missiles in intellectual battles." It is a game everybody plays; and hardly anyone is conscientious enough to make sure that the quotation he uses was actually made by the person he attributes it to.

In our time, as Boller convincingly proves, Senator McCarthy was the undisputed master of the phony quotation. He would fabricate whole "quotations" while on the floor of the Senate, without the slightest shred of substantiation. For sheer gall in distortion and deception, not even Hitler outdid the Senator from Wisconsin.

Some of the world's most famous quotations were never made. Voltaire never said "I disagree with what you say, but will defend with my life your right to say it." Gen. Pershing didn't exclaim, "Lafayette, we are here!" Charles C. Fitchney didn't declaim, "Millions for defence, but not one cent for tribute!"

Gen. Cabronne didn't say, "The Old Guard dies, but never surrenders." Although he denied this quotation all his life, the words were inscribed on his monument in his home town of Nantes. And Galileo never said, "But still it moves," when making his famous recantation.

Spurious Lincoln quotes are the most numerous of all, ranging into the hundreds. He never said, "God must have loved the common people; he made so many of them." Nor, "You can fool all of the people some of the time..."

Fake Lincoln quotes have been used by polemicists of all shades — to "show" that he was anti-Catholic or anti-Negro or anti-Semite or anti-capital or anti-labor or anti whatever the propagandists wanted to prove.

Anyone who is impressed with the authority of quotations, or wonders how Washington, Franklin, Lincoln and others said so many contradictory things would be rewarded and enlightened by spending an evening with Prof. Boller's book. It would make all of us less ready to credit authority simply because it is surrounded by quotation marks.

The Death car

Woman Dies in Crash

NANAIMO—A Vancouver Island woman, well-known in fishing circles, was killed Thursday afternoon in a three-car crash on the Island Highway at Wellington.

She was Mrs. Margaret Alice Clayton, 49, of Northwest Bay. Her 54-year-old husband, William, who was driving, is in poor condition in Nanaimo Regional General Hospital with leg, chest and skull injuries.

A Port Alberni girl, Teresa Herman, four-and-a-half, the daughter of Mrs. Evelyn Herman, 38, of 1400 Montrose, was described as being in fair to good condition. Mrs. Herman suffered a cut lip.

Drivers of the other cars were identified as Mrs. Herman and Daniel Robert Burns, 24, of Nanaimo.

Mr. Clayton and his brother, Pitt, are proprietors of Clayton's Fishing Camp at Northwest Bay. They have been operating the resort since 1953. For many years they also ran Port Boathouse at Port Alberni but sold it a few years ago and moved to Northwest Bay.

Walkout Still Unsolved As Injunction Sought

COURTENAY — The unresolved walkout of 170 Crown Zellerbach employees here, now four days old, is the result of company discrimination against a single worker, a union official said Thursday.

Max Satter, president of Local 1-353, International Woodworkers of America, also claimed that the discrimination against shop steward Ken Zellerbach's industrial relations department seem to like problems to justify their existence.

The company, which has said it won't meet with the union over the dispute until crews return to their jobs, Thursday requested injunctions from the B.C. Labor Relations Board to force the men back to work.

Employees at the company's Beatty Laminated plywood plant in suburban Richmond, on the mainland, are also out on a walkout.

Architect's drawing of new Blanchard school

School Awaits Four Lots

Blanchard elementary school, first in Victoria designed for the new team-teaching method, will be started as soon as land assembly is completed in the Rose-Blanchard urban renewal area.

Acquisition of our properties is all that delays a start on the 16-room, $375,000 structure, city planner Geoffrey Greenhalgh said Thursday.

Blanchard school will replace decrepit North Ward elementary, built in 1894. The new school will rise on seven acres north of Kings Road, east of Blanshard, south of Hillside.

Changes Close Pharmacy

Partly due to the Rose-Blanchard urban renewal scheme and the consequent removal of 127 houses from the area, Sutherland Pharmacy, 2601 Douglas, is closing at the end of June.

Proprietor H. M. Sutherland said another factor in the closure was the changing trend in drug-buying. Many people were going to chain stores for many commodities, including drugs, he said.

That and the fact that there would be a long interval between demolition of old buildings and construction of new dwellings "would take a length of time I can't afford," Mr. Sutherland said.

and west of the lane between Quadra and Wark.

Mr. Greenhalgh said that approximately 60 properties in the area had already been bought. He said he hoped the remaining four could be acquired by negotiation rather than expropriation.

Architect John Di Castri will soon begin test drilling to provide information for foundation plans, school board chairman Peter Burn said this week.

No date has been set for a start or finish on the project, but people involved in the project say it will be ready well before school starts in September, 1968.

It is possible that classes will transfer from North Ward next spring, Mr. Burn suggested.

Mr. Di Castri said Thursday that a space equivalent to four classrooms will house the team-teaching wing. It will be flexibly partitioned to provide large or small teaching areas.

Team-teaching brings several teachers and classes together in a co-operative effort which aims at better learning conditions.

While one teacher is lecturing, another may be researching next day's lesson, while a third is giving intensive instruction to slow learners.

Team-teaching has been practiced elsewhere, but is in the experimental stage in Greater Victoria.

Pension?

Ontario Justice Resigns

By FRASER KELLY
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Mr. Justice Léo Landreville will have to prove he is sick before the government will consider giving him a pension, Justice Minister Trudeau said Thursday.

The 57-year-old judge closed the book on his own controversial career Thursday with a six-paragraph letter of resignation from the Supreme Court of Ontario. The resignation is effective June 30.

The letter was delivered to Mr. Trudeau by hand just six hours before the Senate was to begin impeachment proceedings against the discredited judge.

NO DEAL

Mr. Trudeau strenuously denied a suggestion the government had made a deal whereby Mr. Justice Landreville would resign and in return the government would guarantee him a pension.

"I made damn certain I made no deal. I'd be pretty silly if I had accepted any kind of deal made around me, or behind my back..." he told newsmen.

The judge's act states that a judge who leaves the bench before normal retirement age is not eligible for a pension unless he has resigned because of ill health or he has sat for 15 years. Mr. Justice Landreville has only been on the bench for 11 years.

BOUGHT PENSION

His resignation climaxed feverish behind-the-scenes negotiations in which the judge tried to secure a pension. His letter to Mr. Trudeau said:

"Be advised of my consent to retire and I hereby tender my resignation as judge of the Supreme Court of Ontario effective June 30, 1967.

"After five difficult years and appearing in seven hearings, my health and wealth are impaired. I cannot continue. In any event my usefulness as a judge has been destroyed by the publicity and harassment arising out of such proceedings."

In Jail

PRINCE RUPERT (CP)—A United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union official was refused bail and held in jail Thursday while three others were released on $200 bond.

Jack Nichol, UFAW business agent, appeared in court with union secretary Homer Stevens of Vancouver, northern organizer George Hewitson and executive member Joseph Verde. All were remanded without plea until June 16.

VIOLENCE FEARED

The four were arrested Wednesday night. Their court appearances Thursday morning came amid fears of violence in an inter-city dispute that has continued unabated three months.

A non-executive member of the union, Arthur Murdoch, was arrested on a picket line Thursday afternoon.

'NEW FACES' ARRIVE

Police patrolling the docks were cycling an estimated 50 "new faces" which arrived in this northcoast city by air earlier in the day. The strangers stationed themselves in positions previously manned by UFAW picketers at the Prince Rupert Fishermen's Co-operative. They were not carrying placards.

DISOBEDIENCE

The four officials were arrested Wednesday night just prior to a union meeting and were released about three hours later on $200 bail each. Nichol was arrested again Thursday morning when he appeared at the Co-Op where picketers were parading.

The four were charged with disobeying a court injunction Wednesday and Nichol charged again with disobeying the injunction Thursday.

'Must Solve Root Problems'

Pearson Urges Peace Zone

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson called Thursday for a United Nations-enforced demilitarized zone between Israel and the Arab states to help prevent further conflict in the Middle East.

But he warned that the two sides will continue to be embroiled in conflicts unless action is taken to resolve the root problems of their long-standing enmity.

Unless a lasting political solution is found, it will be only a matter of time until there is "another round of this dangerous game of brinkmanship," he said during a special Commons external affairs debate.

CONFRONTATION

The world's "super powers" could be brought into direct confrontation because the United States stands behind Israel and Russia behind the Arab states.

There was danger that another war outbreak "in convulsing the Middle East could convulse the world."

Mr. Pearson outlined the following steps he said should be taken as soon as possible to cool off the crisis:

- The United Nations ceasefire resolution should be observed by all parties in the dispute.
- Free access should be allowed for all ships through the Gulf of Aqaba.
- Steps should be taken to allow Israeli ships to use the

Pearson

Suez Canal, closed to Israel by the United Arab Republic since their clash in 1956.

- A UN presence should be established on both sides of the border lines between Israel and the Arab states.

FINAL SPARK

Mr. Pearson said it was the U.A.R. announcement that the Gulf of Aqaba would be closed to Israeli shipping that provided the final spark for the current fighting.

The prime minister spoke after special steps had been taken to bring spending estimates of the external affairs department before the Commons. Opposition Leader Diefenbaker had suggested the step to allow a full-scale debate on the Middle East crisis.

Mr. Diefenbaker later accused the government of following an uncertain and irresponsible Middle East policy. It had tried to be in agreement diplomatically with both Israel and the Arab states.

ISRAELIS WONDER

"The Arabs no longer trust us and the Israelis wonder about us," the Conservative leader said.

Unless the Arabs changed their attitude, it was doubtful that Canadians would be allowed to send troops as part of a United Nations force that might be sent to the Middle East.

"No longer are we regarded as a country without a national interest."

In a brief clash with Defence Minister Hellyer, the Opposition leader accused the minister of deceiving Parliament during re-

Moscow Told Why U.S. Planes Aloft

Ship Attack Activates 'Hot Line'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Israeli planes and boats mistakenly strafed and torpedoed a U.S. Navy ship off the Egyptian coast Thursday, the U.S. defence department said, killing 10 Americans and wounding 100 others in a high seas incident that brought the White House into "hot line" contact with Moscow.

A flight of U.S. jet fighters sped toward the USS Liberty

15 miles north of Sinai when the lightly armed vessel reported it was under attack, officials said. But the U.S. planes returned to their 6th Fleet carriers when a message of apology was received from Tel Aviv.

The 110 casualties represent nearly one-third of the crew on the Liberty, a research ship that had been helping relay communications from

U.S. installations in the Middle East. About 20 of the wounded are in serious condition, said Phil G. Goulding, assistant secretary of defence.

Goulding said the vessel was badly damaged by the six strafing runs conducted by an unspecified number of Israeli jet fighters. The Liberty also was hit on its starboard side by a torpedo launched by one of three Israeli torpedo boats.

When the White House learned of the attack — and before the Israeli note was received — President Johnson used the Washington-Moscow "hot line" to notify Soviet leaders that carrier-based aircraft were scrambling and heading toward the scene.

Soviet ships were operating in the eastern Mediterranean near the 6th Fleet and the president wanted Moscow to understand why the U.S. aircraft were being sent aloft. Press Secretary George Christian said.

At the White House, Christian said the direct communications link between the White House and Kremlin had been used "for a number of exchanges" since the Israeli-Arab fighting broke out Monday.

From UPI, AP, CP

The war between Israel and the Arab world ended Thursday in a smashing Israeli victory with their forces reaching the Suez Canal.

Egypt agreed to a ceasefire Thursday night, less than 84 hours after the first shots were fired, an even more humiliating defeat for the Arabs than the 100-hour Sinai war in 1956.

Jordan and Israel agreed to a truce Wednesday. Word from Damascus early today said Syria had followed the lead of Egypt and Jordan and accepted the United Nations ceasefire. They were the main belligerents in the Arab war to "exterminate" the Jewish state in a holy war.

In Cairo the semi-official Egyptian newspaper Al-Ahram announced President Gamal Abdel Nasser will address the nation today.

Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban said in New York that peace terms must be reached "in direct negotiations between Israel and the Arab states."

"I think that the time has arrived for the states in the region to assert their sovereign capability to arrange their own affairs," Eban said before taking off on a flight to Israel from the UN Security Council debate on the crisis.

Since the outbreak of the Middle East conflict Monday, Israel's tough and highly mobile troops and airmen had destroyed Arab air power, driven Egyptian armor back to the Suez Canal, reopened the blockaded Gulf of Aqaba and seized long-coveted areas of the Holy Land.

SECOND DEFEAT

Nasser, who yearned to lead the Arab world, was silent in the face of the debacle — his second humiliation as president in 11 years at the hands of Israel's air and desert legions. He was a loser to Israel as a field soldier in the war of 1948.

Egyptians were bitter as the news was broken to them early today by the official, Cairo radio.

"This means we have shed our blood in vain," said one in Cairo.

SHORT WAR

One of the shortest wars in history seemed about over although Algiers radio said although Algeria radio said to the liberation of Palestine and would accept no ceasefire.

In Damascus, the Syrians, who had been most vociferous in support of the war, kept up belligerent broadcasts until this morning when the official radio beamed out news of the ceasefire acceptance.

Before Cairo radio broadcast the ceasefire acceptance, an Egyptian army communiqué

Nasser, Hussein 'Taped'

Plane Tale Plotted By Phone

TEL AVIV (AP)—The Israelis told Thursday of listening in on a radio conversation in which they said Egypt's President Gamal Abdel Nasser talked with Jordan's King Hussein about joining in trumped-up charges that U.S. and British planes were supporting the Israelis in combat.

The Israelis said they tuned in Nasser's talk early Tuesday—when Arab planes had been disabled by Israeli action.

"When the extent of the military defeat was finally clear in Nasser, he began to act to save his prestige," an Israeli announcement said.

"Nasser decided to save his prestige by claiming the Egyptian forces in the Sinai retreated, not as a result of a clear and sharp military defeat in his war with Israel, but because of imaginary foreign forces."

Tapes and Text

The defence ministry played transcription tapes, in Arab, for correspondents and then issued texts in English. The spokesman, Col. Moshe Pearlman, said the Israelis had not made the "evidence" public immediately because there was so much other news.

The translation provided by the Israeli authorities was under the heading: "Conversation between Cairo and Amman by radio telephone link June 6, 0450 a.m."

Hussein: "Mr. President, if you have something or any idea at all . . . at any time."

Nasser: "We are fighting with all our strength and we have battles going on every front all night and if we had any trouble in the fighting it does not matter, we will overcome despite this. God is with us. Will his majesty make an announcement on the participation of Americans and the British?"

Answer not clear.

'From Aircraft Carriers'

Nasser: "By God, I say that I will make an announcement and we will see to it that the Syrians will make an announcement that American and British airplanes are taking part against us from aircraft carriers. We will issue an announcement, we will stress the matter and we will drive the point home."

Hussein: "Good, all right."

Answer not clear.

Nasser: "A thousand thanks. Do not give up. We are with you with all our hearts and we are flying our planes over Israel today, our planes are striking at Israel's air fields since morning."

Hussein: "A thousand thanks. Be well."

Both Britain and the United States have denied the Arab charges and the Israelis have said they were fighting alone. The British foreign office said Jordan officially denied all knowledge of any American or British warplanes operating over her territory during the war.

Pearson Calls for Peace Zone

cent debate on the bill to unify the armed services. The minister had not told MPs the main purpose of unification was to enable Canada to play a larger peacekeeping role.

"He deceived Parliament and now he's trying to find an alibi," Mr. Diefenbaker charged.

Mr. Hellyer said he resented Mr. Diefenbaker's "insinuation."

"NO NEUTRALITY"

After the Conservative leader resumed his seat, Mr. Hellyer described his speech as "one of the worst . . . I've ever heard in the House."

Mr. Diefenbaker said Canada could not afford to let go unchallenged President Nasser's stated aim of wanting to destroy Israel.

"There can be no neutrality on the part of Canada to those who have the objective of destroying the Hebrew race."

FREE PASSAGE

He said consideration should be given to making Jerusalem either a part of Israel or an international city. There must be free passage for shipping through the Gulf of Aqaba and "there can be no equivocation on this question whatsoever."

Another problem that must be solved, Mr. Diefenbaker said, is the plight of the Palestinian refugees whose camp living conditions he described as "a blot on civilization."

Mr. Pearson, reviewing the Middle East situation, said the recent fighting broke out because the United Nations had "failed miserably" to solve the real problems behind the Israel-Arab conflict despite the fact that the UN Emergency Force had kept the peace for 15½ years.

UNANIMOUS

The UN Security Council had been unanimous in reaching a call for a ceasefire in the area but a start had to be made on working out solutions to the underlying causes of the hostility.

On the Gulf of Aqaba, he said Israel had declared 25 years ago that she would regard any closure as an act of aggression.

Diefenbaker

Martin

There might be legal questions about whether or not the gulf is an international waterway, Mr. Pearson said. This point could be tackled by the International Court of Justice.

But meantime there should be no claim on the waterway by any of the states bordering the gulf and free access should be allowed.

When a new UN presence is established between Israel and the U.A.R., Mr. Pearson said, a demilitarized zone should be set up with the UN force maintaining it on each side.

The UNEF force ordered out by the U.A.R. before the current fighting started was on U.A.R. territory only. Israel refused it permission to occupy Israeli soil.

ISRAEL MUST AGREE

This time, Mr. Pearson said, Israel should make a concession and allow the force on her soil.

He suggested the UN Truce Supervisory Organization, still in being, could be used as the basis to build up a strong UN presence.

Mr. Pearson said the fact that there was peace for 10½ years under the UNEF demonstrated that it was not a failure. "The time is not for vanishing United Nations forces but for stronger United Nations forces."

CAUSE LIES DEEP

The causes of the continuing enmity between Israel and the Arab states lie "very deep indeed," the prime minister said. A lasting solution would not be easy to obtain.

The UN Security Council holds the main responsibility for trying to resolve these problems, Mr. Pearson said. And the Big Four—the United States, Britain, France and Russia—as permanent council members carried a big share of the responsibility.

HIGHEST LEVEL

He suggested there could be a meeting of the four powers at the "highest political level" aimed at steps toward a lasting solution. Another problem was the Arab refugees who fled their homes when the Israelis established their country 20 years ago and who still are in refugee camps.

Mr. Pearson said the 1,250,000 refugees have been "used as pawns in the game of Middle East politics" and steps must be taken to resettle them.

External Affairs Minister Martin complained of "provocations" in Mr. Diefenbaker's speech.

NOT ACCEPTABLE?

"I cannot for the life of me understand why there should be a suggestion in this House that because Canadian forces were requested to leave Egypt, Canadian forces would no longer be acceptable in that part of the world or any other," he said.

"I didn't say 'any other,'" Mr. Diefenbaker interjected.

Mr. Martin said the remarks made by the Conservative leader had not been the kind he had expected in this type of situation.

NO HUMILIATION

The minister said Canada had no reason to be humiliated by the withdrawal of the UNEF units at Egyptian insistence.

There was no legal basis for the UNEF withdrawal, but he understood the problem faced by U Thant when Egypt demanded that the force leave.

Egypt, Syria Give Up Battle

appeared to be preparing the people for news of a debacle.

A communique said Egyptian forces were in a battle against Israel "unprecedented in its ferocity," and fighting went on.

Meanwhile in New York the Security Council deadlocked on the crisis when the Soviet Union stepped up its efforts to have Israel branded the aggressor.

The United States proposed a resolution combining a ceasefire appeal and a call for an immediate start toward a settlement of Arab-Israeli issues. The Soviet Union countered with a resolution asking the council to condemn Israel for aggression and demand the withdrawal of Israeli forces behind the armistice lines drawn up by the United Nations in 1949.

CONSULTATION

The council adjourned until today to provide time for consultation.

Thant read Egypt's decision to the council, saying he had received the following communication from the Egyptian ambassador.

"Your Excellency, I have the honor to inform you upon instructions from my government that it has decided to accept the ceasefire call as it has been prescribed in the resolutions of the council on the 5th and 6th of June on the condition that the other party cease to fire."

NO REFERENCE

Israel already had promised to end the fighting if the Arabs did so.

Egypt accepted the ceasefire call without reference to the Soviet Union's demands that Israel withdraw its troops to the 1949 armistice lines. Such a withdrawal would have forced the Israelis to give up, without any compensating factor, the huge areas it overran in the Sinai between the Suez Canal and the Red Sea and in Jordan to the Jordan River. The withdrawal also could make Israel vulnerable once more to an historic battle area where three wars have been waged in 19 years.

How did the Israelis do it?

"They applied the German blitzkrieg military tactic to desert warfare," one U.S. defense department official commented.

ALGERIANS IN?

King Hussein of Jordan told reporters in his capital at Amman that overwhelming Israeli air power knocked his army out of the war. He said the Jordanian soldiers stood no chance under relentless air attack and Jordan suffered tremendous losses.

The Syrian radio said tough troops from Algeria had joined the Egyptians in the battle of the desert. There was no other confirmation.

Radio Algiers said several squadrons of Algerian Russian-built MIG fighter planes had arrived at an Egyptian air base. It was not reported whether they ever got into action against the Israelis.

One of the big battles Thursday was reported at Bir Gafza, big junction and Egyptian air base 45 miles east of Suez. The spokesman implied but did not say that the Egyptians had been driven out.

War Volunteers Fight for Space

LONDON (AP)—Fighting broke out at a London airport among British volunteers trying to get places aboard an Israel-bound airliner. Many of the nearly 300 volunteers had been waiting at the airport 48 hours for places aboard El-Al planes.

A second battle was reported at Mitla Pass, 20 miles east of Suez at the southern end of the canal. The spokesman said the Egyptians were driven from this gateway to the canal.

Simultaneously, he disclosed that two Israeli columns had driven deep into the Sinai Peninsula. One column was said to have captured Nakal, in the middle of the peninsula on the road between the city of Suez and the Israeli port of Elath. The other column was said to have seized Thameh 25 miles southeast of Nakal. The spokesman said Egyptians in this area were routed.

Blockade Point

Israeli reinforcements were reported arriving at Sharm el Sheikh, the height overlooking the mouth of the Gulf of Aqaba gateway to Elath. It was from this point that Egypt blockaded the gulf against Israeli shipping.

With the blockade lifted, two Israeli-chartered ships headed out of Elath for the Red Sea.

After the seizure of Old Jerusalem from the Jordanians, the Israelis claimed complete control of the west bank of the River Jordan wiping out the northern part of the Jordanian bulge into Israel. Israeli civilian teams were reported to have moved in to establish control over the region.

A British foreign office spokesman in London said Jordan has officially denied all knowledge of any U.S. or British warplanes operating over its territory to Israel during the fighting, as charged by Egypt.

Fishboats Missing

TOKYO (AP)—Four Japanese fishing boats with about 30 crew members aboard were reported missing in stormy weather off Hokkaido, Japan's northernmost main island, the Maritime Safety Agency said Thursday.

It Was Murder

LONDON (Reuters)—British financier Henry Bowen-Davies, whose multi-million-dollar empire crashed in February, murdered his wife and two children before shooting himself last month, a coroner's inquest said Thursday.

Lorry Looted

LONDON (AP)—A bank truck containing £44,000 ($132,000) was stolen when two guards left it to make a delivery. A spokesman for the delivery company said the robbers must have had a full set of keys for the truck "or it was simply towed away."

Gavel Has a Most Exciting Journey

The centennial gavel, which is travelling the Island from council to council, must surely be on its strangest journey at present.

Emphasizing the need of a ferry at Alert Bay and Sointula, which has a population of 3,000, Reeve Gordon Peterson and councillors took the gavel by Indian dugout to Port McNeill.

The 10-mile trip across Johnstone Straits was made in a strong westerly wind and against a swift tide.

Accompanying the canoeists was RCMP constable Bob Barker.

The trip took three hours. When they arrived in Port McNeill, transportation changed to a wheelbarrow, and the gavel 'walked' to Port Hardy.

The party, led by centennial chairman Jerry Furney, and with Coun. Ben Kirby wheeling the barrow, left at 5 a.m. and arrived at noon.

The hot dusty trip, of 24 miles, was made to emphasize the need for a black-topped road.

Exhausted, the party arrived at Port Hardy, where food, drinks and foot baths were waiting.

Coun. Rod Hostman, of Port Hardy, and Reeve Stewart Robinson of Port McNeill then showed local Indians what had been bought over such an accident-prone journey, a 50-pound box, with a tiny gavel and small wooden mount.

They put the message across, though.

The company, which has said it won't meet with the union over the dispute until crews return to their jobs, Thursday requested injunctions from the B.C. Labor Relations Board to force the men back to work.

"I'm going to give you what I think is a break," the judge said after he heard that Cudmore had served 18 months for the same charge.

Two years ago he was convicted for breaking and entry at a golf club in Victoria, where he stole cigarettes and liquor.

He testified that he heard Cudmore admit the breaking and entering.

Driver, Alcohol Blamed in Death

COURTENAY — A recommendation that the source of supply of alcohol to minors be investigated was part of the verdict brought in by the jury inquiring into the death of Robert Arthur Neidrauer.

The young man was killed in an accident Feb. 17 in a two-car smash on the Courtenay-Cumberland Road. The accident sent two passengers in the car, Brian Harold Pederson and Brian Dennis Perrin, to hospital with serious injuries.

ROAD DRY

Evidence at the inquest showed Neidrauer died of chest and head injuries received when his car sideswiped a vehicle driven by William Barnes, Cumberland, then travelled a further 197 feet before sideswiping a pole and hitting a tree head-on. The driver was pronounced dead at the scene.

The accident scene was at a sharp curve in the road and RCMP said the road was dry, the corner lit with a lamp standard and the road marked by a solid double line.

A blood sample taken from William Barnes, driver of the other car, showed a nil alcohol count while one taken from the dead driver showed an alcohol count of .15 per cent.

SHOWING OFF

Both passengers in the Neidrauer car admitted the driver was showing off, driving fast and changing his car from low range to drive at high speed causing it to jerk and swerve.

Perrin in his evidence said the lights of the oncoming car blinded his eyes but later admitted when looking at a sketch of the accident scene, that this could not have been so because of the curves in the road. Coroner Tom Menzies said he did not believe the evidence of the young man.

PASSENGER AFRAID

Pederson, who came to the inquest still limping and using a cane told the inquest it seemed to him Neidrauer had been drinking and admitted he was scared riding with him. He said he asked to be let out but Neidrauer replied, "Don't be afraid."

He also stated the dead driver drove fast and was a bit careless, depending on what kind of a mood he was in.

DRIVER IMPAIRED

The coroner's jury said it felt Neidrauer had come to his death as the result of head and chest injuries sustained in a motor vehicle accident caused by alcohol impairment and his own reckless driving. They attached no blame to the driver of the other car.

The inquest was delayed because both witnesses spent weeks in hospital.

Around the Island

NANAIMO — Felix Joseph Page, 27, of Nanaimo pleaded guilty to being in care and control of a vehicle while intoxicated. He was sentenced to 14 days in jail and was prohibited from driving in Canada for one year. Police found him asleep in his car on the Island Highway at Wellington. His keys were in the ignition.

DUNCAN — Matt Molr's Jersey bull, Handen Farm Kerry's Pride, has been designated a Silver Medal bull by the Canadian Jersey Cattle Club on the high production of his daughters. The bull now has seven daughters that average 1,824 pounds milk, 470 pounds fat, 5.21 per cent. The bull was bred by H. Standen, Cowichan Station.

Bright Angel In Need Of Helpers

COWICHAN STATION — One of two projects of the South Cowichan centennial committee is the completion of a 24-acre park located at the end of Twigg Road in the Cowichan Station area.

To many local residents the area is also known as Fairbridge. The park, a combination of forest and field near the Koksilah River, came into existence in 1958 when a local resident, Jack Fleetwood, donated more than four acres of land for a recreation area.

***

It was named Bright Angel and several years later another acre of land was added to the park by Henry Dosh. In 1965 the provincial government allotted still another 22.5 acres across the Koksilah.

A park's board of five was set up with its chairman, Art Burnett, and members Jack Fleetwood, Fred Cooper, Jerry Hebers and Dave Bradbury.

This committee, along with the centennial committee, undertook to have the park completed by July 31.

Mr. Burnett said 500 hours were volunteered toward developing the park last year and another 120 this year. He said an acre of land has been cleared for parking space.

"We hope to pour concrete for the change house this Sunday," he said. "Last year was spent clearing out dead brush on the original piece of land."

***

There are 50 picnic tables under construction and the park will have about 20 barbecue pits.

Connecting the two land areas on either side of the Koksilah will be a 300-foot suspension bridge.

"We need more volunteer help," Mr. Burnett said.

One man alone has volunteered 116 hours on the park, and many elderly people have made cash contributions.

***

Work parties are held Tuesdays and Thursdays from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m., and Sundays 9:30 a.m. until noon.

$2,500 Raised

DUNCAN — A successful campaign on behalf of retarded children has been reported by Mrs. O. R. Ingram, campaign chairman of the Duncan and district association.

Mrs. Ingram said the group's aim is to provide a wider world for the mentally retarded.

"With the warm-hearted generosity of the citizens of Duncan and district, we will now be able to do just that."

She said donations amount to about $2,500.

THANKS

She said a special thanks should be given to Kuper Island school. Grades 5 and 6 of the school invited children of the Arcadian school for the retarded in Duncan to a picnic on Kuper Island.

BOTTLE DRIVE

The Kuper Island children conducted a bottle drive and raised $31 towards the campaign. Students of Quamichan junior high school collected more than 1,400 pocketbooks to be sold to help the retarded workshop.

More than 700 donations in all were made.

Wrenettes Inspected

PORT ALBERNI — Twenty-five members and officers of the E. L. Hammer Wrenette corps were inspected by Cmdr. W. F. Walker at the corps' annual inspection and award night this week.

Following the inspection on Kingsway, a reception was held "on the ship" for parents and visitors.

During the evening the Wrenettes demonstrated their skills at knot-tying and semaphore.

Fifteen-year-old Paulette Greus was top award winner, taking the E. L. Hammer proficiency award for a first-class Wrenette and also the president's trophy for "Wrenette of the Year."

The Stocken annual trophy for best ordinary Wrenette went to Evelyn Lytle, while Deborah Sherman was awarded the Ena Reid trophy.

Woman Dies in Crash

NANAIMO — A Vancouver Island woman, well-known in fishing circles, was killed Thursday afternoon in a three-car crash on the Island Highway at Wellington.

She was Mrs. Margaret Alice Clayton, 49, of Northwest Bay. Her 54-year-old husband, William, who was driving, is in poor condition in Nanaimo Regional General Hospital with leg, chest and skull injuries.

A Port Alberni girl, Teresa Herman, four-and-a-half, the daughter of Mrs. Evelyn Herman, 38, of 1400 Montrose, was described as being in fair to good condition. Mrs. Herman suffered a cut lip.

Drivers of the other cars were identified as Mrs. Herman and Daniel Robert Burns, 24, of Nanaimo.

Mr. Clayton and his brother, Pitt, 40, proprietors of Clayton's Fishing Camp at Northwest Bay. They have been operating the resort since 1953. For many years they also ran Port Boatouse at Port Alberni but sold it a few years ago and moved to Northwest Bay.

Air Show Too, When:

Parade Leads Off Giant Comox Day

COMOX — Ugly Rumors will hit town Aug. 12 but so far nobody's objected because it's the name of a dance band and the group will play for a street dance that night.

It's all part of the plans for Comox Day. Details of the tennis tournament are being handled by Al Whiteford, who will set up rules and receive entries.

Comox council is considering buying blazers and has narrowed the pattern choice to the B.C. dogwood tartan and the Canadian Centennial tartan.

Another event is the air show Saturday afternoon, over Comox Bay. Taking part will be Voodoo, Neptune and Albion aircraft and helicopters from CFB Comox, a Tiger moth and possibly other small privately-owned aircraft.

The day begins with a giant parade in the morning, crowning of the queen and sports for the children.

An antique mail wagon, once used here, will be part of the parade along with antique cars from Comox Valley and Campbell River area.

A dog show will be part of the celebrations and likely will be held Sunday, Aug. 13, same day as the horse show.

The American navy will be invited to participate by sending a ship while plans for the arrival of an RCN ship are not yet complete.

Drive-In at Duncan

DUNCAN — This area will soon have a drive-in theatre called the Duncan Park Cinema.

The new owner, Phil May of May Theatres, Alberta, said the drive-in is scheduled to be re-opened June 30.

His firm is renovating the site of the former Sunset

Theatre—shut down since 1953. Cost of reconstruction is $40,000.

"We came to Vancouver Island three weeks ago looking for theatre sites," said Mr. May, adding the island is ideal for outdoor theatres because of warm winters.

400 SPEAKERS

The Duncan cinema park, located on the Island Highway three miles south of Duncan, will have 400 speakers.

The 16.5 acre site will have new projection equipment and sound system, a new cinema screen and a remodeled concession area.

25 MORE SEATS

Inside the 54 by 16 foot concession building there is room for 25 more seats.

The drive-in will employ 12 full and part-time workers, as well as manager Bob McNeil.

Mr. May said, "We will be running top quality movies, some first run, and intend catering for family entertainment as well as younger people."

18 MONTHS

The May theatre firm operates six screens in Alberta—two drive-ins and four indoor theatres.

The theatre, formerly owned by Phil Whitaker of the Duncan district, will be open 18 months, seven nights a week and with two shows a week.

MIDNIGHT FILM

During summer months a midnight feature will be shown.

Looking around at the overgrown, unkempt grounds, Mr. May said, "This can be a beautiful spot, especially with the trees all around it."

"But the entire 16.5 acres will have to be ramped and treed—there's a lot of work to be done."

Yes, I'd Love This Dance!

Although we've seen bathing costumes from the early part of this century before, it's been a long time since we've seen anyone make them look so appealing.

Pauline Gilmore, of Nanaimo, modelled this bathing costume at this week's fashion show in Nanaimo's Tallyho motel in aid of funds for the YMCA and YWCA.

Mayday For Ferry

UNION BAY — A rescue was called in soon after midnight recently when the ferry Catherine Graham, with two cars on board, broke down and unable to use her engine or steering gear. A boat with a mechanic was dispatched and the usual 20-minute trip from Buckley Bay to Denman Island lasted two hours. Roy Pardiak, of Courtenay, towed the disabled ferry with his boat to keep the service going for a further eight hours until repairs were completed.

UNCLUT — A second floor is being added to the municipal building as the new site for the public library. The project, for which no cost or completion date is known, is the town's centennial project. Popularity of the library has jumped in recent years, with a steadily increasing children and adult membership.

Sponsors Go

Official Back In Jail

PRINCE RUPERT (CP)—A United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union official was refused bail and held in jail Thursday while three others were released on $200 bond.

Jack Nichol, UFAWU business agent, appeared in court with union secretary Homer Stevens of Vancouver, northern organizer George Hewitson and executive member Joseph Verde. All were remanded without plea until June 16.

VIOLENCE FEARED

The four were arrested Wednesday night. Their court appearances Thursday morning came amid fears of violence in an inter-city dispute that has continued unabated three months.

A non-executive member of the union, Arthur Murdoch, was arrested on a picket line Thursday afternoon.

'NEW FACES' ARRIVE

Police patrolling the docks were eyeing an estimated 50 "new faces" which arrived in this northcoast city by air earlier in the day. The strangers stationed themselves in positions previously manned by UFAWU picketers at the Prince Rupert Fishermen's Co-operative. They were not carrying placards.

DISOBEDIENCE

The four officials were arrested Wednesday night just prior to a union meeting and were released about three hours later on $200 bail each. Nichol was arrested again Thursday morning when he appeared at the Co-Op where picketers were parading.

The four were charged with disobeying a court injunction Wednesday and Nichol charged again with disobeying the injunction Thursday.

'Must Solve Root Problems'

Pearson Urges Peace Zone

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson called Thursday for a United Nations-enforced demilitarized zone between Israel and the Arab states to help prevent further conflict in the Middle East.

But he warned that the two sides will continue to be embroiled in conflicts unless action is taken to resolve the root problems of their long-standing enmity.

Unless a lasting political solution is found, it will be only a matter of time until there is "another round of this dangerous game of brinkmanship," he said during a special Commons external affairs debate.

CONFRONTATION

The world's "super powers" could be brought into direct confrontation because the United States stands behind Israel and Russia behind the Arab states.

There was danger that another war outbreak "in convulsing the Middle East could convulse the world."

Mr. Pearson outlined the following steps he said should be taken as soon as possible to cool off the crisis:

- The United Nations ceasefire resolution should be observed by all parties in the dispute.

- Free access should be allowed for all ships through the Gulf of Aqaba.

- Steps should be taken to allow Israeli ships to use the Suez Canal, closed to Israel by the United Arab Republic since their clash in 1956.

- A UN presence should be established on both sides of the border lines between Israel and the Arab states.

FINAL SPARK

Mr. Pearson said it was the U.A.R. announcement that the Gulf of Aqaba would be closed to Israeli shipping that provided the final spark for the current fighting.

The prime minister spoke after special steps had been taken to bring spending estimates of the external affairs department before the Commons. Opposition Leader Diefenbaker had suggested the step to allow a full-scale debate on the Middle East crisis.

Mr. Diefenbaker later accused the government of follow-

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP)—The centennial voyageur canoe pageant recorded its first casualty Thursday.

John Ross, 18, of Fort McPherson, N.W.T., a member of the Northwest Territories canoe team, was taken to hospital with knee injuries. The diagnosis was water on the knee.

From UPI, AP, CP

The war between Israel and the Arab world ended Thursday in a smashing Israeli victory with their forces reaching the Suez Canal.

Egypt agreed to a ceasefire Thursday night, less than 84 hours after the first shots were fired, an even more humiliating defeat for the Arabs than the 100-hour Sinai war in 1956.

Jordan and Israel agreed to a truce Wednesday. Word from Damascus early today said Syria had followed the lead of Egypt and Jordan and accepted the United Nations ceasefire. They were the main belligerents in the Arab war to "exterminate" the Jewish state in a holy war.

In Cairo the semi-official Egyptian newspaper Al-Ahram announced President Gamal Abdel Nasser will address the nation today.

Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban said in New York that peace terms must be reached "in direct negotiations between Israel and the Arab states."

"I think that the time has arrived for the states in the region to assert their sovereign capability to arrange their own affairs," Eban said before taking off on a flight to Israel from the UN Security Council debate on the crisis.

Since the outbreak of the Middle East conflict Monday, Israel's tough and highly mobile troops and air forces had destroyed Arab air power, driven Egyptian armor back to the Suez Canal, reopened the blockaded Gulf of Aqaba and seized long-coveted areas of the Holy Land.

SECOND DEFEAT

Nasser, who yearned to lead the Arab world, was silent in the face of the debacle — his second humiliation as president in 11 years at the hands of Israel's air and desert legions. He was a loser to Israel as a field soldier in the war of 1948.

Egyptians were bitter as the news was broken to them early today by the official Cairo radio.

"This means we have shed our blood in vain," said one in Cairo.

The government radio in Cairo told the Egyptian people about the ceasefire acceptance without comment hours after UN Secretary-General U Thant made the announcement to the Security Council in New York.

SHORT WAR

One of the shortest wars in history seemed about over although Algiers radio said Algeria was willing to fight on to the liberation of Palestine and would accept no ceasefire.

In Damascus, the Syrians, who had been most vociferous in support of the war, kept up belligerent broadcasts until this morning when the official radio beamed out news of the ceasefire acceptance.

Before Cairo radio broadcast the ceasefire acceptance, an Egyptian army communique

Nasser, Hussein 'Taped'

Plane Tale Plotted By Phone

TEL AVIV (AP)—The Israelis told Thursday of listening in on a radio conversation in which they said Egypt's President Gamal Abdel Nasser talked with Jordan's King Hussein about joining in trumped-up charges that U.S. and British planes were supporting the Israelis in combat.

The Israelis said they tuned in Nasser's talk early Tuesday—when Arab planes had been disabled by Israeli action.

"When the extent of the military defeat was finally clear to Nasser, he began to act to save his prestige," an Israeli announcement said.

"Nasser decided to save his prestige by claiming the Egyptian forces in the Sinai retreated, not as a result of a clear and sharp military defeat in his war with Israel, but because of imaginary foreign forces."

Tapes and Text

The defence ministry played transcription tapes, in Arab, for correspondents and then issued texts in English.

The spokesman, Col. Moshe Pearlman, said the Israelis had not made the "evidence" public immediately because there was so much other news.

The translation provided by the Israeli authorities was under the heading: "Conversation between Cairo and Amman by radio telephone link June 6, 0450 a.m."

Hussein: "Mr. President, if you have something or any idea at all . . . at any time."

Nasser: "We are fighting with all our strength and we have battles going on every front all night and if we had any trouble in the fighting it does not matter, we will overcome despite this. God is with us. Will his majesty make an announcement on the participation of Americans and the British?"

Answer not clear.

'From Aircraft Carriers'

Nasser: "By God, I say that I will make an announcement and we will see to it that the Syrians will make an announcement that American and British airplanes are taking part against us from aircraft carriers. We will issue an announcement, we will stress the matter and we will drive the point home."

Hussein: "Good, all right."

Answer not clear.

Nasser: "A thousand thanks. Do not give up. We are with you with all our hearts and we are flying our planes over Israel today, our planes are striking at Israel's air fields since morning."

Hussein: "A thousand thanks. Be well."

Both Britain and the United States have denied the Arab charges and the Israelis have said they were fighting alone. The British foreign office said Jordan officially denied all knowledge of any American or British warplanes operating over her territory during the war.

Attacked by Israelis: USS Liberty

Moscow Told Why U.S. Planes Aloft

Ship Attack Activates 'Hot Line'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Israeli planes and boats mistakenly strafed and torpedoed a U.S. Navy ship off the Egyptian coast Thursday, the U.S. defence department said, killing 10 Americans and wounding 100 others in a high seas incident that brought the White House into "hot line" contact with Moscow.

A flight of U.S. jet fighters sped toward the USS Liberty

15 miles north of Sinai when the lightly armed vessel reported it was under attack, officials said. But the U.S. planes returned to their 6th Fleet carriers when a message of apology was received from Tel Aviv.

The 110 casualties represent nearly one-third of the crew on the Liberty, a research ship that had been helping relay communications from

U.S. installations in the Middle East. About 20 of the wounded are in serious condition, said Phil G. Goulding, assistant secretary of defence. Goulding said the vessel was badly damaged by the six strafing runs conducted by an unspecified number of Israeli jet fighters. The Liberty also was hit on its starboard side by a torpedo launched by one of three Israeli torpedo boats.

When the White House learned of the attack — and before the Israeli note was received — President Johnson used the Washington-Moscow "hot line" to notify Soviet leaders that carrier-based aircraft were scrambling and heading toward the scene.

Soviet ships were operating in the eastern Mediterranean near the 6th Fleet and the president wanted Moscow to understand why the U.S. aircraft were being sent aloft, Press Secretary George Christian said.

At the White House, Christian said the direct communications link between the White House and Kremlin had been used "for a number of exchanges" since the Israeli-Arab fighting broke out Monday.
